KIDNAPERS BREAK OFF NEGOTIATIONS WITH LINDY; REFUSE TO RESPOND TO EXCITEMENT COOLS

Moore, Ragsdale Returned Victors; School Bonds Win

East Point Mayor Given Commission Post Held
by Stewart; Johnson Is Only Incumbent Going Down to Defeat.

9,861 VOTES GIVEN
BIG SCHOOL ISSUE

Passage of $700,000 Bond Issue Assured; Total of Almost 25,000 Ballots Is Cast in Primary.

BY HERMAN D. HANCOCK.

Five of the six incumbents who sought re-nomination in the Fulton county primary Wednesday appeared to have been assured of re-election, with Guy A. Moore, opposing Edwin F. Johnson for tax receiver, winning the other position. Only 54 of the 59 precincts had reported, however, but it was believed that no results would be changed. Voters also authorized a $700,000 bond issue for Fulton county schools. It is estimated that about 25,000 votes were polled.

Winners seemed to be George F.
Longino Jr., incumbent, and J. A.
Ragsdale, mayor of East Point, for the two county commission vacancies;
J. Walton Simmons, clerk of Fulton county superior court; W. S. Richardson, tax collector; James I. Lowry, veteran sheriff; Mrs. Mabel Abbott MacNeill, treasurer.

Officeholders whose nominations for re-election were uncontested are Judge Hugh M. Dorsey, of city court of Atlanta; Judge Jesse M. Wood, of criminal court of Atlanta; Solicitor John S. McClelland, of criminal court of Atlanta; Judge Thomas H. Jeffries, ordinary; Jere A. Wells, superior court judge; Paul Donehoo, coroner, and E. W. Robert, surveyor.

Longino Polls 17,776 Votes.

Longino had a total of 17,776 votes, while Ragsdale received 8,470, according to tabulations made by the county commission. Longino won the place he already held, while Ragsdale will succeed Walter B. Stewart, former chairman of the commission, who has sought re-nomination. Ed. L. Almond, third entrant in the seven-cornered fight for the two positions, had 7,294 votes; W. A. Jones 6,220; Dr. A. H.
Cochran, 4,899; George B. Lyle, 5,
696; W. A. Lynn 3,944.

Lowry, veteran of 15 years' experience, was leading his nearest opponent, J. Ben Daniel, in the fivecornered set, having 9,187 to 7,372 for Daniel. Others had the following:
A. M. Corrie 4,894; Cal Bates 3,528
and H. M. Patton 1,864.

It took only 7,786 votes to assure passage of the school bonds, but 9, 861 votes were cast for them with 1, 405 against, thus furnishing the constitutional majority necessary to insure passage.

Simmons defeated B. C. "Tut" Broyles more than two to one, receiving 17,771 votes, while his opponent mustered 8,180. This was one of the hardest-fought campaigns of the entire primary, marked by spirited de-

"PAYING GUESTS"

Almost every home in Atlanta has a spare room nicely furnished for the use of "Paying Guests," better known as roomers or boarders.

The surest way to locate a "Paying Guest" is through the use of want ad advertising in The Constitution.

Wide coverage of circulation gives you the choice of selecting the kind of people you would like to have in your home. Call Walnut 6565 and after you have listed your ad, just "charge it."

GILLIAM LEADING FORCES TO KEEP MAYOR IN OFFICE

Active Campaign to Defeat Recall Movement
Will Open Today;
Friends Rally to Key.

Asserting that every means possible to present the administration in its "true light" will be made and that efforts of those opposing the recall of Mayor James L. Key on which Atlantians will vote Tuesday, will be directed toward getting a "fair expression of the electorate," Alderman Ed A. Gilliam, of the twelfth ward, late Wednesday assumed command of the drive to prevent Key's ouster.

Gilliam, who also is a member of Atlanta board of education, announced he will appeal to the voters of Atlanta at 6:30 o'clock tonight over WSB and will tell the reasons for the recall and also acquaint citizens and taxpayers of Atlanta with the real reasons for the movement to oust Key.

"I want to have a registration list of 35,000 persons," Gilliam said.
"That is necessary to get a fair expression in this the most serious and the gravest situation of Atlanta with the real reasons for the movement to oust Key."

"Never before in the history of the local government—supposedly a democratic one—has any person been thrown before the people on any issue with only one week in which to acquaint the people of the issues at stake. Proponents of the recall utilized every unfair tactic possible to prevent citizens from knowing the truth. It shall be our purpose to tell the unvarnished truth about the whole matter. It is Mr. Key's plan to take the public completely and unexpect-ingly into his confidence as he has done in the past."

Gilliam's statement came on the heels of a letter to the mayor from T. Semmes Wainwright, of New Orleans, a close personal friend of the Atlanta mayor.

The manager, backed by a large group of influential and leading Atlanta businessmen, headed by V. P.
Warren, prominent manufacturer, will lay down the first of a series of radio baragans tonight. He will call on voters to register and vote in the election to oust Key from the city from behind the puppet of a minority group seeking their own private gain and selfish political advancement.

Minnesota Added To New Hampshire In Roosevelt Fold

Gopher State Will Have Two Sets of Delegates
at Democratic Convention.

ST. PAUL, Minn., March 9.—(AP)— Minnesota's delegation to the national democratic convention in June tonight was instructed to support Governor Franklin D. Roosevelt, of New York, for the party's nomination for president. Minnesota has 24 votes.

The instructions were issued at the state democratic convention after a minority composed of supporters of former Governor Alfred E. Smith had organized a separate set of delegates, and elected a separate set of delegates.
Although formally instructed, this group announced it would support
Smith if seated.

The bolting group declared for repeal of the eighteenth amendment, and many of the group then returned to the main convention as long as it before the main convention adopted a similar resolution.

Under the instructions given the Roosevelt delegation, it will support his candidacy as long as it before the national convention or until three-fourths of its members decide by ballot that he has no further chance for victory.

The Smith convention was organized at the invitation of Mrs. Ruth Haynes Carpenter, of Minneapolis, with a large part of its membership drawn from groups refused seats in the official convention. One democrat found himself in the unique position of having been chosen a delegate to the national meeting by both groups.
Mrs. Carpenter said the bolters will

JAPANESE OFFER NEW TRUCE PLAN TO CHINA'S HEADS

Nipponese, However, Continue to Swarm Into Shanghai Area as New Transports Arrive.

By the Associated Press.
Japan submitted a new peace proposal at Shanghai today and at the same time pressed ahead with the movement of reinforcements and supplies to the front.

The new proposal, details of which were not made public, expressed Japan's eagerness to negotiate a truce because of the "imminent possibility that hostilities will break out afresh."

Japanese authorities at Shanghai said they were arresting two Japanese civilians who gave Miss Rose Marlowe, missionary teacher from Williamsburg, Ky., a severe beating last Friday.

In Tokyo, police announced they had discovered the existence of a small group of fanatical patriots banded together to assassinate eminent Japanese leaders. The police blamed this group for the recent assassinations of Baron Takuma Dan and Junnosuke Inouye, former finance minister.

In Changchun, Manchuria, Henry Po-yi was installed as ruler of the new Manchurian-Mongolian state at a ceremony featured by much knowing and weird music.

A drafting committee of the League of Nations assembly worked on a resolution to define the assembly's program in the Sino-Japanese conflict—a program expected to be "critical and constructive" of the forces at Shanghai.

The new proposal, submitted through Sir Miles Lampson, British minister to China, asserted Japan was eager to negotiate a truce because of the "critical and constructive" of the forces at Shanghai.

Abductors Await Safe, Proper Time To Return Eaglet

Notes Received by Airman Fail to Disclose
Place of Hiding; Police Report Progress of Investigation Encouraging.

Mayor Curley Denies Reporting Baby Home
BOSTON, Mass., March 9.—
Mayor James J. Curley today denied he had made definite statements regarding the reputed safety of the Lindbergh baby, and blamed
"a newspaper friend" for spreading a report which he, later relayed to other friends.

The mayor was reported to have said in conversation that he understood the baby had been returned Sunday, and that by agreements with his kidnappers, no news would be given out "for 72 hours."

At the hilltop home of the Linderberghs it was flatly denied that the baby was at either the Lindbergh or the Morrow home.

Neither these two notes nor the ransom demand, filed pinned to the window sill of the nursery a week ago last night, contained specific information about where and how the parents could reach the kidnappers to bargain with them.

Meanwhile, there were indications the long wait and the steady state beginning to tell on Mrs. Lindbergh.
"You must realize the strain is terrific, and has been throughout the investigation," said Colonel H. Norman Schwarzkopf, head of the New Jersey state police, in answer to a question about Mrs. Lindbergh's health.

Doctor's Visit Vists.
Earlier he said the secret negotiations being pressed under the direction of the Lindbergh family were "strictly confidential" and that the "condition of the health of Mrs.
Anne Lindbergh is such that we cannot interfere in these matters."

A sudden visit of two physicians to the Lindberghs' hilltop home following the issuance of this statement was explained by Colonel Schwarzkopf by saying they "came to see me to discuss a theory. They saw no member of the Lindbergh family."

While interest centered in police reports, they were continuing to make progress with their investigation and in the meantime, Colonel Schwarzkopf believed in the safety and ultimate return of the famous baby was expressed by Governor Moore.

"I have absolute confidence that the baby will come back alive and unharmed."

bates and a series of charges and counter-charges. Johnson had 10,269 votes against Moore's 15,537.

W. S. Richardson, incumbent tax collector, got 17,840 votes to defeat his opponent, A. C. Minihmet, more than two to one, with Minihmet getting 8,483.

11,955 for Mrs. MacNeill, incumbent treasurer, polled 11,955 votes, almost as many as both her opponents. R. H. Conner, only man in the race received 7,219, while Mrs. Beulah Doneboe Manston, third contestant, had 4,872.

Campbell and Milton section of Fulton county participated for the first time in a Fulton county election. Fulton now has more than 500 square miles, and returns from the 59 precincts came in more slowly than usual, preventing a complete tabulation.

Official tabulations will be made at noon today at the courthouse under the direction of the democratic executive committee, it was announced by Hewitt Chambers, secretary.

The Campbell and Milton sections were credited with having swung the second commissioner's race, and with playing a large part in the decisions of other close contests.

The missing precincts at 2 o'clock Thursday morning were: South Bend (Fulton), Alpharetta (Milton), Double Branch (Milton), Newton (Milton), and Old Ninth (Campbell).

Despite the fact that departmental races eclipsed the commission contests during the month's campaigning, there appeared to be much interest in the voting, and Ragsdale and Almand were fighting one of the closest contests in recent political history.

Several of the contests were hard fought, and the intensive drives for ballots which all aspirants made were reflected in the voting where in many cases the boxes were won by less than a dozen votes.

Wells Thanks Voters. Jere A. Wells, superintendent of Fulton county schools, issued a statement of thanks to the voters of the county for the bond issue.

"We wish to take this opportunity to thank those who fought so valiantly and so hard for the good of the children of the county," Wells said.

"The money will be judiciously expended in behalf of the children. It will be administered with a view of obtaining the most it will buy and every child in the county will be housed in a decent building. I want to thank especially the 1,300 who worked so valiantly and so unselfishly in the campaign."

Longino Issued Statement. Longino issued the following statement of thanks to the people of the county:

"I wish to take this opportunity to express my thanks for the magnificent support of the people of Fulton county in the primary, which I construe to mean an endorsement of my short service and my efforts in their behalf. I shall continue to give the people as efficient an administration as is possible, and promise them an honest business-like government."

Simmons Grateful. "I hardly know how to express the gratitude of myself and my associates for this magnificent endorsement of our efforts," said Clerk of Superior Court, Simmons. "To all who have contributed their time and efforts I express my deepest thanks. I should like to assure the people of the entire county that our greatest concern should be to give them the sort of service they are entitled to in the clerk's office. You shall find us on the job, ready and prepared to serve you at all times. Feel free to call at any time, on any employee of the clerk's office for any service in our power to render. Thank you one and all."

Lowry Thanks Supporters. Sheriff Lowry issued a statement expressing his hearty appreciation of the confidence shown in him by the voters, and pledging a continuation of "the same faithful and efficient service that my deputies and I have rendered."

J. DELAVAN LIVELY, 92, ATLANTA PIONEER, DIES

J. Delavan Lively, a pioneer resident of Atlanta and Cherokee county, and widely known for his Civil War service and reconstruction efforts, died Tuesday morning at the home of a close friend, S. J. Gibbs, in the settlement of Orange, in Cherokee county. Death was caused by pneumonia contracted 10 days previously by Mr. Lively, who was 92 years old.

Funeral services were held Wednesday in the Turner chapel at Decatur, the Rev. J. C. Maness officiating. Interment was in Oakland cemetery.

Born in November, 1840, in South Carolina, Mr. Lively was a cadet at the Citadel in Charleston when the first shot of the Civil War was fired. He immediately went to Tennessee, where his family had removed, and volunteered for service in a company being formed. He was commissioned captain and served throughout the war in that rank.

After the Civil War he made his home in Atlanta, where he took an active part in reconstruction efforts, later removing to Cherokee county to occupy a large area of land he had secured by grant. This area included the entire Sawnee mountain in Cherokee county, and Mr. Lively developed many acres into free homes for the poor.

In addition to his efforts toward settlement of the community, Mr. Lively erected a school, where he himself taught elementary and secondary grades which later were taken over by the educational unit of that part of the county, with Mr. Lively remaining as teacher until his retirement about 10 years ago.

Mr. Lively remained a bachelor, until his death, after which he lived with a sister until her death. He had been living at the Gibbs home for several years.

Ways tried to give in the past. Sheriff Lowry invited the general public to call upon him at any time that he can be of service. "I will seek to repay the confidence of the voters with the very best service of which I am capable," Sheriff Lowry said.

Primary votes were cast in 63 boxes in 59 precincts, four of the precincts having two boxes each for the convenience of the public because of larger registration lists. School bond polls were maintained adjacent to the primary polls in the country districts. The proposed school bond issue is for $700,000 for repair and replacement of county school buildings, the bonds to be retired from the annual capital outlay funds of the county board of education without an increase in taxes.

Hot Coffee Supplied. Mrs. John L. Harper did her part toward combating the bitter cold by supplying several gallons of hot coffee to the workers at Precinct 8-A. Mrs. Harper also distributed carnations.

Hewitt Chambers, secretary of the county democratic executive committee, spent the greater part of the day visiting the various polling places to make sure that there were no hitches in the operation of the primary.

Seven officeholders were nominated for re-election without opposition. These are: Judge Hugh M. Dorsey, of circuit court of Atlanta; Judge Jesse M. Wood, of criminal court of Atlanta; John S. McClelland, solicitor of criminal court of Atlanta; Judge Thomas H. Jeffries, of criminal court; A. Wells, superintendent of schools; Paul Doneboe, coroner, and E. W. Robert, surgeon.

Superintendent Wells, of the county schools, said that 7,798 votes were necessary to pass the school bond issue, the registration in the county, exclusive of the city of Atlanta, being 15,570.

J. WALTON SIMMONS, Clerk of Superior Court.

RENEWED ACTIVITY FOR JOBLESS SHOWN

NEW YORK, March 9.—(AP)—The national organizations seeking employment for 1,000,000 men today reported renewed activity in the lumber and tobacco industries.

"Two thousand five hundred men were put back to work by the tobacco warehouses in Lancaster county, Pennsylvania," the statement said.

"Reports from Louisiana, Washington and Oregon showed a revival in the lumber industry. The Norman Brexton Lumber Company, Morgan City, La., employed 250 men.

"The Wheeling Steel Corporation, Wheeling, W. Va., put 800 men back on the pay roll. A sum of $2,000 was pledged for labor wages in Tuscaloosa, Ala., national headquarters announced.

"Permanent jobs were also found in Tuscaloosa," today's report said.

GUY A. MOORE, Tax Receiver.

Farmers on Lindy Road Protest Chicken Killing

HOPEWELL, N. J., March 9.—(UP)—Farmers along a two and a half mile dirt road leading to the Lindbergh estate said today they planned to submit to Governor A. Harry Moore a petition charging that their chickens were being "bumped off" by automobiles traveling on the road.

Prior to the Lindbergh baby kidnapping, the farmers said, not more than a half dozen cars passed on the road, but now "hundreds and hundreds of reporters and police travel back and forth on the road, never looking out for our chickens."

"While other places here are making money," the farmers said, "we are losing money."

Authorization for railroads to provide mail transportation by motor truck instead of train.

Appeal Death Sentence. WASHINGTON, March 9.—(AP)—Herman Taylor, Donald Rylich, George O'Day, white, and Ito Jack, or "Jacques," negro, convicted in New Orleans, La., of the murder of Raymond Rizzo on November 22, 1930, today asked the supreme court to set aside the verdict of death imposed on them. They claimed the crime in New Orleans before which they were tried did not have jurisdiction.

HOUSE APPROVES BAR TO KIDNAPERS' MAIL

Severe Penalties Provided in Bill Changing Postal Regulations.

WASHINGTON, March 9.—(AP)—Spurred by the Lindbergh kidnapping the house today approved unanimously and sent to the senate legislation providing severe punishments for those who send threatening letters through the mails.

Pausing during consideration of a series of bills designed to slash $15,000,000 from the postal deficit and help balance the budget, Chairman Mead, of the postoffice committee called up the Cochran bill and it was approved in less than five minutes.

Applause greeted Speaker Garner's announcement that the bill, providing maximum penalties of $5,000 fine and 20 years' imprisonment, was passed. In its report the committee said:

"A new outrage has been perpetrated in the kidnapping of the son of the famous aviator, Charles A. Lindbergh, and our mail system was used to convey threats and demands of the kidnapers.

Prompt Action Urged. "This latest fiendish act has so impressed our committee that it is deemed advisable, while the congress and the country are in a state of preparation to report this legislation when its chance of consideration and approval are excellent and for the added purpose that it will bring to the assistance of the states and localities the aid of the federal government in stamping out this atrocious form of crime."

The house also passed postal legislation intended to increase revenues by over $15,000,000, and definitely stop the Brunner bill to stop the automatic salary reductions which take effect when revenues of a post-office drop below its classification.

The bill passed and sent to the senate would provide:

An increase in registered mail fees estimated to add $7,000,000 annually to federal revenue.

An increase in insurance and C. O. D. charges estimated to bring in $2,500,000.

Entry of Publications. A $100 fee charge for entry of a publication as second-class matter and $10 charge for re-entry, estimated to add $500,000 in revenue.

Permission for transient second-class matter sent by other than publishers and registered agents, estimated on the basis of prospective increased business to add $500,000.

Prohibition against depositing in resident letter boxes circulars and bills bearing no postage, estimated to add $4,000,000 by forcing the use of the mails in sending such matter. (This prohibition already applies to rural letter boxes.)

Prohibition for the postoffice department to charge extra for the payment of money orders at offices other than those on which the orders are drawn.

Authorization for railroads to provide mail transportation by motor truck instead of train.

Appeal Death Sentence. WASHINGTON, March 9.—(AP)—Herman Taylor, Donald Rylich, George O'Day, white, and Ito Jack, or "Jacques," negro, convicted in New Orleans, La., of the murder of Raymond Rizzo on November 22, 1930, today asked the supreme court to set aside the verdict of death imposed on them. They claimed the crime in New Orleans before which they were tried did not have jurisdiction.

Kidnaping of Detroit Child in 1929 Closely Parallels Lindbergh Case

BY WILLIAM H. BEATTY.

DETROIT, March 9.—(AP)—Late in the afternoon of Monday, September 30, 1929, Mrs. Harry M. Thompson heard a scream from her 5-year-old son, Jackie, playing at the curb in front of the Thompson's Lindsay avenue home. She rushed to the window in time to see a green sedan speeding down the street. Jackie had disappeared.

Frantic, Mrs. Thompson telephoned her husband, a well-to-do real estate operator. He notified the police immediately, and the preliminary chain of events which followed—climaxing in the dramatic return of Jackie nearly a month later, the payment of $17,000 ransom, and the eventual capture of the abductors—closely parallels the circumstances surrounding the kidnapping of Charles Augustus Lindbergh Jr. from the Hopewell (N. J.) home of the famous flier.

England was searched. Known gang leaders were questioned, and even asked to aid in recovering the child. Police guards were thrown about the Thompson home—and then suddenly withdrawn, that the abductors might deal directly with Thompson. Outside law agencies were called in, and Detroit, more or less accustomed to frequent kidnappings of bootleggers and racketeers, was aroused by the kidnapping of young Jackie Thompson as it had been by no other abduction.

Two days after Jackie's disappearance the police had arrested several suspects. All clues proved worthless, however, and high police officials admitted they were "up against it." At the end of a week Thompson requested the officials to refrain from questioning him, and the guard was withdrawn from around his home.

Three weeks passed, without developments. Thompson repeatedly refused to make any statement regarding his progress in contacting the abductors. The prices passed, and the Thompson kidnaping case began to slip from the front pages of Detroit newspapers.

Then, on the night of October 24—25 days after the kidnapping—a police squad car drove up in front of the Lindsay avenue home and returned Jackie Thompson, unharmed and in good health, to his parents. The newspapers the next day announced the arrest of five persons, three men and two women, all charged with the kidnapping. Of these five, only one was detailed for trial.

For several days Thompson declined to discuss the case. Then, changing his mind, he agreed to testify against James Fernandez, 39, a used-car dealer who had known Thompson for eight years, and who was one of the five arrested. The story behind the real estate dealer's reticence came out. Fernandez had acted as a "go-between" Thompson, for several days prior to Jackie's return, had been negotiating with the kidnappers, receiving letters from them at an outlying postal sub-station through the general delivery window. The kidnappers had demanded $25,000 ransom, which Thompson finally reduced to $17,000 cash and a note for $8,000. In company with Fernandez, the "contact" man, he had gone to the Fernandez home, where the money was paid to a second man. He was told to return for the child. Police, who had trailed them, raided the home within half an hour. They found Jackie, unharmed. He said he had been kept "somewhere on a farm, where there were other children to play with."

All the residents of the Fernandez home were arrested. On Fernandez's person was found $5,000 in marked bills delivered by Thompson as part of the ransom. The others were released, after investigation, but Fernandez was tried, convicted, and sentenced to from 30 to 60 years imprisonment. The investigation went on, quietly.

In May, 1931, nearly two years later, the police announced that Vincent Lamanna, one-time Detroit racketeer, had been arrested in Jersey City, in the Sicilian colony there, as the man to whom Thompson had paid the money. Three months later, after police had questioned Lamanna, they announced the arrest of Charles Minichilla, Detroit racketeer, as the man who actually abducted the child. Both men were identified by Jackie. They were convicted. Minichilla was sentenced to 25 to 50 years, and Lamanna

ADVOCATES OF AMITY HEAR PRESS LAUDED

Part of U. S. Newspapers in Allaying Prejudices Stressed at Meeting.

WASHINGTON, March 9.—(AP)—Advocates of tolerance and amity heard today that the American press plays in allaying religious prejudices and friction.

Robert B. Ashworth, editor of "The Baptist," Byron Price, chief of the Washington bureau of the Associated Press; Michael Williams, editor of "The Commonwealth," and Alfred M. Cohen, editor of "B'nai B'rith" magazine, cited before the national conference of Jews and Christians what has been accomplished to end bigotry and charted future courses.

"There is need of a press service to supply material of an inter-racial and inter-religious character," Ashworth said. "When we started as editors of 'The Baptist' we circulated other religious bodies, asking them to send us items of general interest. The response was practically nil. We should be glad to report the best that other religious bodies are doing."

They endangered the life of a little boy and caused worry and suffering to his parents. They are wolves, and as wolves they shall be treated."

Eagle's Health To Protect Him, Family Physician Assures Anne

BY JANE DIXON.
(Copyright, 1932, by the North American Newspaper Alliance, Inc.)

HOPEWELL, N. J., March 9.—Anne Lindbergh has a physician of the Morrow family in Princeton, N. J., that unless her son has fallen into careless or destructive hands, he will be returned to her in good health.

Normality of youth and a robust constitution built up by scientific and loving care will see him through the ordeal to which he is being subjected, always supposing he still lives, the doctor said. And Anne Lindbergh will admit of no other possibility except the one that her son is alive.

He has undergone various baby ailments, but his well-nurtured body, which is free of blemish, and perfectly co-ordinated constitution, have quickly put to rest infant disorders.

"The junior Lindbergh is a bright little chap," says the family physician, who prefers to remain unknown. "He has a particularly sunny disposition. The cold from which he was suffering when he was taken from the Lindbergh home would be cleared up quickly under the average care. Young children catch cold easily and recover from it quickly and readily with the usual precautions if care is given them."

The Lindbergh baby is cheerful and responsive to attention, so that there is every reason to believe he will suffer no permanent injury from separation from his parents if he is treated with the consideration any human being might be expected to give to a child.

A natural reaction would be that little Lindy was not snatched from his crib by a human being but by a beast in human form. Granting that much is true, the beast in human form is a selfish one and self-interest would impel him or her to take care of the body. The moment the spirit of the eagle takes wing from his tiny body, nothing is left to his kidnappers except a fear so imperative that by every aim of similar crime it must drive the criminal either to self-destruction or to detection.

Three women arms locked, "paced slowly along the gravel road which describes an arc in front of the Lindbergh home—a woman in the autumn of life, Mrs. Dwight Morrow, a woman in the summer of life, Mrs. Henry Breckenridge, and a woman in the spring of life, Mrs. Charles A. Lindbergh. Grandmother, mother, family friend.

The young mother was in the center of the group. She looked white and distraught. She walked as though her heels were weighted with lead, as though the whipping of the skirt of her dark sports dress about her limbs was an irresistible force dragging her backward. The short fur jacket she wore was open to the cold air of the mountain top, but she seemed unconscious of the chill outdoors although she is suffering from a cold and is under the care of a physician.

Depleted vitality, resulting from lack of sleep and irregular and insufficient food, plus the terrific strain on mind, body and heart, have made of Anne Lindbergh an easy prey to any one of the seasonable ills.

Family and physician insist that Anne Lindbergh must get as much rest as possible. Always of a studious and thoughtful disposition, they have sought to divert her mind and relax her body by interesting her in the books she loves. She strives to obey the decree but the leaves of the books she holds flutter through restless fingers.

Only in the early morning hours when the world is as still as her world can be until her son is returned, does she concentrate on the printed library. Then she steals down into the comfortable chairs, and tries to follow the minds of the literary masters.

The most intensive man hunt in the history of the nation is being conducted on and about Soudland mountain perch of the Lone Eagle's nest.

The search radiates from a crossroad named Zion, deep in the hills. Until night fall, the writer follows mountain trails, scrambled over rocky formations and through damp hillside caves, worked through underbrush, treacherous woodlands, and in and out of the windows of mountain huts, listened to the echo of cautious footsteps in deserted houses and cabins, and through the crossing for several mornings preceding the kidnapping. She says she noticed the car because "it made a funny noise" like the car of one of the neighbors when the road and she looked out of the window to see which way her neighbor was headed.

Rebecca Bush, a mountain woman, mother of six sturdy sons, said to this writer: "Why don't they ask us people up here to help them find the baby? We know every inch of the ground. We know places the police will never find. But none of us is going to butt in to other folks' business until we're asked. Even if we found the baby we'd be a-scare to say so for fear we'd be suspected of stealing him and maybe thrown into jail for the rest of our lives."

"We ain't going to do no searching unless there's a policeman with us. If they'll give us enough police, every man, woman and child in the mountains will hunt until there ain't an inch left to hide the baby."

Rebecca Bush claims to have seen a blue mystery sedan carrying three men, driving through the woods for several mornings preceding the kidnapping. She says she noticed the car because "it made a funny noise" like the car of one of the neighbors when the road and she looked out of the window to see which way her neighbor was headed.

The car was passing her house and she wondered because strangers seldom essay a passage along the rocky lane which in more urban districts would be little more than a cow path.

John McCormack Talks of Future, Expresses Concern Over Kidnaping

BY ROY ROBERT.
John McCormack assumed the role of interviewer when reporters swarmed his suite at the Biltmore hotel Wednesday afternoon and before newspapermen could launch their questions, the great man of song, anxiety apparent in his face, inquired: "What is the latest news of the Lindbergh baby?"

And John McCormack, himself famous and honored, declined to talk about other things until informed regarding the plight of Baby Lindbergh. When told that there was no confirmation of the report the baby was safe, he did just what everyone else does—expressed a wish that all is well with the child.

It was impossible for the genial humor of the Irishman to remain long depressed and he gradually turned to the task of talking for publication, and revealed his plans for the future. He will go to Europe this autumn for a tour which will keep him away from this country for several months. He anticipates no radio or moving picture work soon.

"The radio—? Why it frightens me nearly to death," he said, adding that a microphone impressed him as a monster, ready and waiting "to do things" to his voice. His last appearance before a microphone was last for another picture soon.

McCormack arrived in Atlanta from a six-concert tour of Florida and began resting in preparation for his appearance here Friday night at the city auditorium under auspices of the Atlanta Music Club. Guarded by D. P. McSweeney, his constant companion and manager, the great tenor could not be reached until late in the afternoon. He arrived in Atlanta early Wednesday morning to find the coldest weather of the winter—but he said he liked it, "having been sunbathed with too much warmth in Florida."

There was sincerity, absolute and spontaneous, in McCormack's admission of a particular fondness for Atlanta and Atlanta people. He explained that his kind and enthusiastic receptions have endeared the people to him.

"I love your traditions and your atmosphere," he said, following with praise for Frank L. Stanton, famous Georgia poet, who wrote "Mighty Lak a Rose" and other songs. "Mr. McSweeney injected a voice of praise for Joel Chandler Harris, creator of the immortal Uncle Remus tales."

"They were songs without music," he said. McCormack said that while his program for his Atlanta concert had been prepared in advance that he would try to sing as many request numbers as possible.

Tickets for the concert Friday night are on sale at Cable Piano Company. Following his Atlanta appearance McCormack will go to Birmingham and from there to Durham, N. C., continuing his tour.

McCormack's complete program follows: "Oh Sleep, Why Dost Thou Leave Me" by Handel; "Sentirsi il Petto Accendere" (Artaserse), Vinci; "Memento, Arthur Footie"; "Good Night, Dear" (old love melody), arranged by Bunten; "Lughi Sereni e Cari," Dunaudy; "Is She Passing Fair?" Sir Edward Elgar; Irish folk songs: "The Meeting of the Waters," arranged by Edwin Schneider; "The Spanish Lady," "The Rose of Kildare," and "Kitty, My Love," adapted and arranged by Herbert Hughes; modern Irish songs, "Far Apart," Edwin Schneider; "Smilin' Kitty O'Day," Torrence; "When Rocks Fly Home," Alec Rowley, and by general request, "Kathleen Mavourneen." Piano numbers by Edwin Schneider, who has long been associated with McCormack as accompanist, will be "The Island Spell," John Ireland; "Playa" (Spanish Dance), "Gravitas" and "Romance" (Arabesque), Harry Arnold.

CANTOR'S COMEDY GIVEN STIFF TEST BY SCHOOL PUPILS

BEVERLY HILLS, Cal., March 9.—(P)—Eddie Cantor, stage and screen comedian, went to school today for a stiff examination.

His examiners were fourth to eighth grade pupils of Hawthorne school. The general theme was how movies are made, and why, but some of the interrogations were personal. "Are you funny," one boy wanted to know, "at home as you are in pictures?"

"No," nobody pays to listen to me at home."

Someone wanted to know who is his favorite leading lady. His daughter, Edna, was in the audience. Cantor diplomatically responded, "Mrs. Cantor."

"Is it necessary to be funny to be a comedian?" another young hopeful asked.

"No," said Cantor, "but it helps a lot."

39 More Atlantans Given Jobs; Georgia's Total Passes 4,000

Thirty-nine more jobs were found for jobless Atlantans in Wednesday's efforts of workers in the united action campaign against unemployment, bringing to a total of 685 the number of jobs obtained in Atlanta since the drive was opened two weeks ago.

At the same time it was announced that Captain William A. Sirmon, state adjutant for the American Legion, one of the principal sponsors of the nationwide campaign, has written to New York headquarters asking that figures for the entire state of Georgia be corrected to show that more than 4,000 positions have been found instead of about 3,380 now shown on the national reports.

Reports to state headquarters, Captain Sirmon pointed out, showed at least that much discrepancy between actual employment and the reports from New York. Figures in his office showed 331 jobs found and filled in Savannah while the national headquarters shows "33." Macon has reported the employment of 1,054 persons, whereas the national records show only 728, Captain Sirmon said.

Other figures made public after the close of Wednesday's drive revealed that College Park obtained 5; Americus 18, and Milledgeville 45—none of which appears in the national New York-released figures.

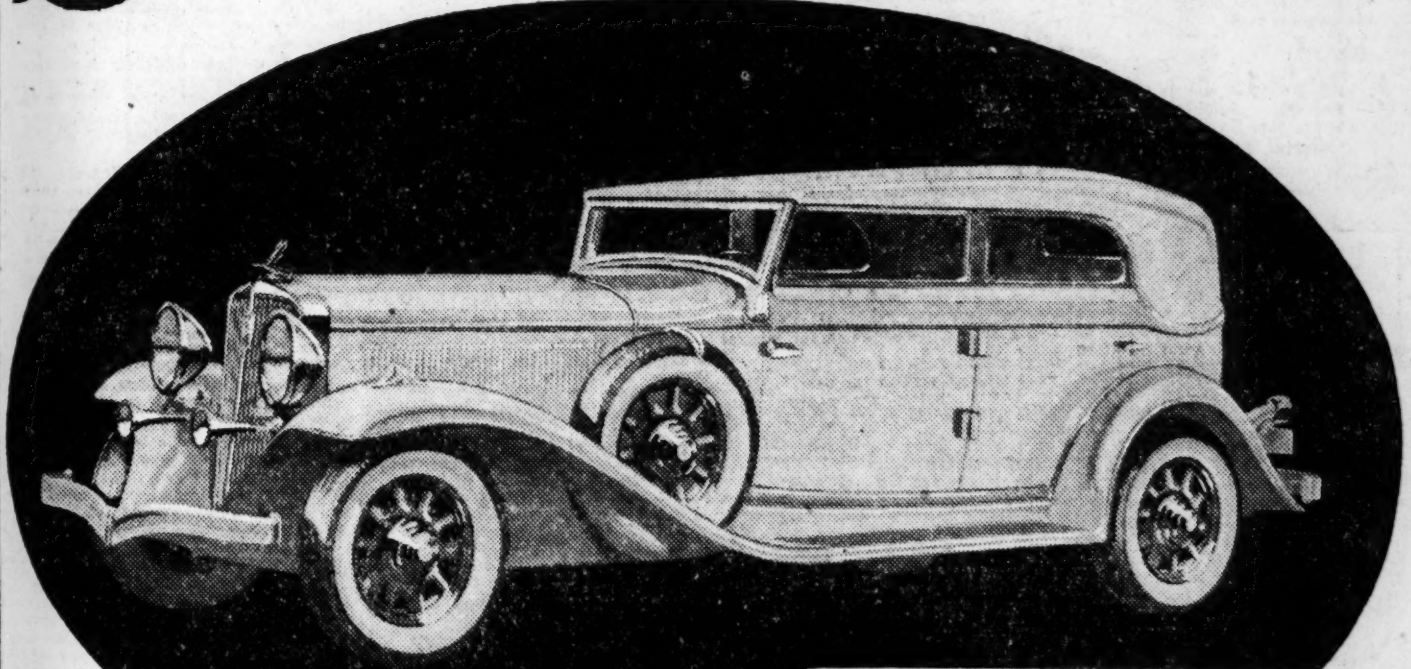

Georgia continued to hold third place in the ranking of southern states, even with its official figure of only 3,380. North Carolina was in first place with 5,004; Alabama, 4,073; Mississippi, 2,601; Tennessee, 1,174; Louisiana, 1,708; South Carolina, 847.

State Roosevelt Campaign Moves Steadily Toward Goal

As 130 counties in Georgia, including Fulton and DeKalb, Wednesday were preparing to hold a presidential preference primary March 23, and with indications that the other 29 would complete arrangements this week, the campaign to carry this state overwhelmingly for Governor Franklin D. Roosevelt moved toward the goal with precision and multiplied interest.

Developments included:

1. Announcement by Miss Stella Akin that 130 counties had notified her they would hold a primary and that the other 29 would notify her during the week. A record vote was predicted in each county.

2. W. E. Page, Governor Roosevelt's personal representative in the state, wired Roosevelt that while the latter's majority in New Hampshire was overwhelming, "it is not a circumstance to what your majority will be in Georgia."

3. In a statement issued to every paper in Georgia, Page said: "The people of this state will not be taken in by the Howard plan; they will not be beguiled into buying a pig in a poke in any such way. There seems little likelihood that Garner's name will be before the convention after his own state, Texas, gives him one or two complimentary votes."

4. Murray backers for Roosevelt. Murray supporters wrote Roosevelt headquarters: "There are two qualified candidates in Georgia, Governor Roosevelt and Judge Howard, and we reiterate that of our own initiative we urge all Murray supporters to vote for Governor Roosevelt in the Georgia primary in preference to the Gillen-Howard-for-Garner-for-Hearst lineup."

5. Judge Newt A. Morris, of Marietta, on his own initiative, advised headquarters that he would make "some interesting observations" on the Howard campaign in a radio speech from 5:30 to 5:45 o'clock this afternoon.

6. Speaker Arlie D. Tucker, of Berrien county, one of the host of headquarters visitors Thursday, said the entire section surrounding Berrien was "solid for Roosevelt." Tucker also said that most people support "the nigger in the woodpile" in the Howard-by-proxy-for-Garner campaign.

In his telegram congratulating Governor Roosevelt on the New Hampshire victory, Page said:

"Your Georgia friends wish to congratulate you on your sweeping victory in New Hampshire and to assure you that, while your majority there was overwhelming, it is not a circumstance to what your majority will be in Georgia on March 23. All the news we receive from the southeast is exceedingly favorable to your candidacy."

Statement by Page.

In a statement declaring that "Judge Howard should tell the people that there is no real opposition to Governor Roosevelt in the counties of the writers."

"We are giving our attention mainly to efforts to have the polls opened in Georgia by indirect means to Governor Roosevelt in the counties of the writers."

"In Georgia as in many other states the 'stop Roosevelt' forces are at work. Here as elsewhere they are protected by indifference and with much camouflage."

"Judge G. H. Howard, who has been in politics in Georgia for more than 20 years, is running against Governor Roosevelt and says if he gets the Georgia delegation to the Chicago convention he will give it to Speaker J. N. Garner."

"Speaker Garner's spokesman, Representative Sam Rayburn, has written Judge Howard repudiating his plan to run as proxy for Speaker Garner and demanding that he not only not run as a proxy but insisting that he not run 'in any way as the representative of Speaker Garner.'"

"The people of this state will not

LEADERS EXPECTED AT BIG PARTY RALLY

Harmony Call Will Be Sounded by Democrats at Jefferson Day Dinner.

WASHINGTON, March 9.—(UP)—The "unity of purpose" of the democratic party will be demonstrated in a great Jefferson birthday rally here April 13, democratic headquarters announced tonight.

The statement followed definite reports that Governor Franklin D. Roosevelt had won the New Hampshire election from Alfred E. Smith, a development which headquarters declined to comment upon. Eight of the 10 democratic presidential possibilities will take part in the rally, one of whose purposes was specifically stated as:

"To demonstrate democracy's unity of purpose and the quality of leadership it offers in its effort to assume responsibility for the national government."

Roosevelt, Smith, Governor Albert C. Ritchie, former Senator James A. Reed, former Governor Harry F. Byrd and Senator J. Hamilton Lewis, all presidential candidates, are to speak at a banquet. Governor William H. Murray and Melvin Traylor, of Chicago, will be unable to attend because of previous engagements. Another of the 10 presidential possibilities, Newton Baker, will deliver an eulogy of Woodrow Wilson as part of the day's celebration, and Speaker Charles McNary will be the sponsor of the whole celebration.

Roosevelt supporters meanwhile greeted the New Hampshire results as a victory. They predicted the New York governor would make rapid gains in the North Dakota primary next week, and in other western and southern delegate contests in the next two months.

Smith men still held high hopes their candidate would get the Massachusetts and Rhode Island democratic delegates to the nominating convention.

The Anti-Roosevelt congressmen and those maintaining a neutral attitude as long as they can, refused to comment today.

Senator Thomas J. Walsh, democrat, Montana, said the New Hampshire result was "most significant" and confirms the view that Roosevelt is "the popular choice." In a statement he warned it would be "singularly unfortunate" if a candidate is nominated who is not supported by "popular desire."

"It is not that New Hampshire results are a surprise, but that they show the voters' most significant about the New Hampshire result," said Senator C. C. Dill, democrat, Washington. "They believe the surest way to win is to nominate Governor Roosevelt. They want to avoid another Madison Square Garden debacle."

Senator Kenneth McKellar, democrat, Tennessee, said it indicates "the movement to stop Roosevelt has about petered out." He urged democrats to concentrate on support of Roosevelt.

Senator B. K. Wheeler, democrat, Montana, is on his way to North Dakota to make a few final campaign speeches for Roosevelt in preparation for that state's primary, in which Governor Murray is pitted against Roosevelt.

He was taken by the Howard plan; they will not be beguiled into buying a pig in a poke in any such way. There seems little likelihood that Speaker Garner's name will be before the convention after his own state, Texas, gives him one or two complimentary votes. With Mr. Garner eliminated what would become of the Georgia delegates if they were controlled by Judge Howard?

"In the last of the many campaigns managed by Judge Howard—that of former Governor John M. Slaton

WORLD MUST LOOK TO WOMEN, SAYS MRS. ROOSEVELT

NEW YORK, March 8.—(AP)—Women's special field in politics lies in international relations, Mrs. Franklin D. Roosevelt said in an address here tonight.

The world must look to the women, she said, for the impetus to abolish war.

Men, she said, "fight from their earliest days and believe from boyhood that things must be settled by physical strength."

Mrs. Roosevelt, speaking before a joint meeting of the Roerich Society and the Institute of Advanced Education, expressed the opinion that women have not yet adjusted themselves well to politics.

"But," she added, "they are improving. They should develop their own minds, she said, and not try to assume a masculine viewpoint."

"A woman's mind is just as good as a man's," she said, "but it is different. It has value that should not be lost in an attempt to see things from the male viewpoint."

Before women attain a feeling of comradeship in politics with men, she continued, "they will have to prove their usefulness by doing a little more and doing it a little better than a man in the same job would do."

Speaking of children, Mrs. Roosevelt recommended less teaching of "blind obedience" and more self-reliance. She deplored the lack of character-strengthening influences in modern day living.

Against Senator William J. Harris—Judge Howard was able to carry but the country, she will not do so as a woman's mind is just as good as a man's," she said, "but it is different. It has value that should not be lost in an attempt to see things from the male viewpoint."

"The people of Georgia are entitled to know what interests are promoting the campaign of Judge Howard. He should tell them that William H. Murray, who vigorously supported Hoover in 1928, is one of his chief sponsors."

"Georgians will cast their votes for Governor Roosevelt, whose name is on the progressive statesman's list known to all and who is the one candidate for the democratic presidential nomination who can sweep the entire United States."

Growing Strength Indicated.

"Governor Franklin D. Roosevelt's sweeping victory over Governor Alfred E. Smith in the New Hampshire presidential primary on Tuesday gives answer to many questions concerning the attitude of the voters in the New England states, and is indicative of the New York governor throughout the United States."

"So far, three states have selected their delegates to the democratic national convention on Tuesday. In each case the delegates from two of these three are instructed for Governor Roosevelt and the delegates from the other will go to Chicago for the Roosevelt nomination."

"The Washington delegation, with 16 votes, and the New Hampshire delegation with eight votes, are instructed for the New York governor, while the Louisiana delegation with 20 votes is uninstructed."

"Governor Roosevelt's great victory in New Hampshire presages similar victories for him in other New England states. New York's 94 delegates are certain to be for Governor Roosevelt."

"Reports from all over Georgia are to the effect that the opposition to Governor Roosevelt is making no headway whatsoever and that he will carry Georgia by a large margin. He ever given a candidate in a statewide primary. The landslide is going to be so great for the New York governor that it will be a foregone conclusion on the morning after the primary he will still be wondering whether he is a Garner or a Hearst proxy."

Many Letters Received.

Hundreds of letters have been received at Roosevelt headquarters from well-known democratic leaders in all parts of the state and without exception they all urge Governor Roosevelt to carry their country by great majorities. Some of those from whom letters have been received in the past day or two and their comments follow:

Mayor Scott Canfield, of Decatur: "Mr. Roosevelt is my choice in the Georgia primary. I do not think that there is any serious effort being made in DeKalb county to get votes for any other candidate and I am sure that DeKalb county will be in the Roosevelt column by a large margin."

Jud P. Wilhoit, well-known attorney of Warrenton and member of the Georgia state highway board: "As a member of the highway department I have traveled extensively over the state on account of the department work and in all points throughout the state I find that there is no doubt but that Governor Roosevelt will be the overwhelming choice in the primary."

Dr. J. P. Turk, of Nelson: "I don't think there is the least doubt about Fickens county being safely in Roosevelt-for-president column. At an executive committee meeting today, don't think I heard a dissenting voice."

Spencer T. E. Johnson, of Paines county: "Roosevelt will get 10 or more to 1 in our county. Our people are anxious for Roosevelt."

A. E. Speer, cashier of Bank of Ochlocknee and member of the democratic executive committee of Thomas county, Ochlocknee: "We are 98 per cent for Roosevelt in this section, so do not see any cause to worry about the remaining 2 per cent."

Morris Will Speak.

Judge Newt A. Morris, of Marietta, will discuss the presidential primary situation in Georgia in a radio speech over WSB from 5:30 to 5:45 o'clock this afternoon, it was announced. Page stated that he had been advised by Judge Morris that he had made arrangements to deliver the radio address and that he would undertake to put the people of Georgia in possession of the real facts of the situation.

"Mr. Morris," said Page, "is a well-known attorney of Marietta, a former judge of the Blue Ridge circuit, and one of the outstanding democrats of Georgia. He believes that Governor Roosevelt is the democratic party's most available candidate for the presidency and, if nominated, will sweep the country, just as he swept New Hampshire on Tuesday."

Brigadier General W. S. McNair is in command of the fourth coast guard artillery district, with headquarters at Fort McPherson. He said Wednesday night he was not aware of any change to be made.

charge of headquarters at 420 Rhodes-Haverty building.

"We want the people to register and to get a full expression of their arranged transportation for those who wish to vote for retention of Mr. Key. This transportation can be obtained by simply calling Main 6466 or Main 6467."

"The issue is plain. A few so-called labor leaders became disgruntled and abusive when the mayor refused certain suits. They later became incensed and joined a recall move. They have attempted to herd those affiliated with their organizations and vote them like cattle and are appealing to those not affiliated to join them who hope to command."

"Major Key has been the best friend organized and unorganized labor ever had. For 20 years he has stood a bulwark to defend them against those who treated them unfairly. Jim Key is the same man he has always been. He has not changed, but certain leaders—deploring the riding of the depleted city treasury for the benefit of a few."

"The outsider of Key would be the saddest day Atlanta ever saw. It would mean that a few could control the legislative and the executive branches of the government. They would dictate Key's successor. They would dictate the city's future and the city's destiny."

Big Vote Urged.

"They will cry democracy, but lurking behind the scenes will be the most despotic, covetous and dishonest conspiring ever practiced in any democracy."

"Labor will not be misled as to its best interests. The labor leader can never hope to drive the members of their various crafts as they now are attempting to do. Taxpayers of Atlanta will sit idly by and see their government for the people and the best interests of the majority perverted into an agency for the aggrandizement of a few."

"Let us call on every Atlantan who loves his city to join in defeating decisively this sinister influence, more deadly than any which ever imperiled the city's future."

"The time has come to call a halt, and to strike at the enemies of good, wholesome, clean, honest government."

Text of Walmisley's letter to the mayor follows:

"CITY OF NEW ORLEANS

"Hon. James L. Key, Mayor,
City of Atlanta,
Atlanta, Ga."

"I have seen in the papers the statement that some of your political enemies have succeeded in finally forcing a recall election in Atlanta. I am sure that you know your people and when questions of right and wrong are at stake, will not perpetrate upon you the crime of recalling you simply because you were honest with yourself showing that you despised hypocrisy."

"With all good wishes, permit me to remain,
Your true friend,
T. S. WALMSLEY, Mayor."

MORE SIGNATURES CALLED IN LOS ANGELES RECALL

LOS ANGELES, Cal., March 8.—(AP)—A supplementary petition which Mayor John C. Porter claimed would insure a vote on the question May 3 was filed with the city clerk today.

The original petition, filed several weeks ago, lacked 2,473 signatures of the required number of registered voters, 31,688. Under the law, a supplementary petition may be filed to complete the original. In all, a total of more than 111,000 signatures was obtained.

"I am confident and certain that the man I have in mind is a true spirit of honesty and fair play in their hearts and when it is all said and done the principles which always accurate American make and womanhood when questions of right and wrong are at stake, will not perpetrate upon you the crime of recalling you simply because you were honest with yourself showing that you despised hypocrisy."

seek seats at the national convention but some of the group participating in its deliberations abandoned hope that it would be able to gain recognition at Chicago and returned to the main convention. Joseph Wolf, national democratic committeeman, said the rump convention was without legal standing and will have no significance.

Harmony sought by the Roosevelt group was disrupted at the outset of the meeting by Smith supporters. Within a minute after the convention was called to order by J. J. Farrell, chairman of the state central committee, a Roosevelt supporter, a backer of Smith had seized his microphone.

Farrell finally obtained control and recognized another Roosevelt supporter who nominated Einar Hoidal, of Minneapolis, for convention chairman. Hoidal was elected over Neil M. Cronin, Minneapolis city attorney, leader of the Smith group.

The rump convention then assembled and adopted resolutions favoring repeal of the 18th amendment, dissolution of the federal farm board, and immediate payment of veterans' adjusted service certificates.

Resolutions adopted by the official convention included condemnation of Hawley-Smoot tariff act, immediate payment of veterans' adjusted service certificates, refinancing of agriculture through loans which would be handled by the federal land banks, and a referendum on prohibition.

The delegation to the national convention will consist of 20 district delegates with one vote each, and eight delegates at large with one-half vote each.

HOOVER MAKES BID FOR VOTES OF OHIO

COLUMBUS, Ohio, March 9.—(AP)—President Hoover made a formal bid for Ohio's delegation of 55 to the Chicago convention today, when he filed his consent with the secretary of state for certain delegate candidates and alternates to pledge to him as their first choice for president in compliance with state law.

At the same time, Republican State Chairman Ed D. Schorr, filed the nomination petition of the 11 delegates and alternate candidates-at-large who had received the president's consent to pledge to him.

Mr. Schorr did not file a declaration of candidacy as a means of entering his name in the presidential preference primary, and it is not expected he will do so. If he gets the solid Ohio delegation, that alone is what counts toward ultimate nomination.

To carry the state in the presidential primary would be only a hollow honor, adding nothing to the honor of receiving the delegation.

WILKINSON COUNTY PRIMARY RESULTS

IRWINGTON, Ga., March 9.—(AP)—James L. Pittman, superintendent of county schools, was the only incumbent offering for re-election in the Wilkinson county primary today to meet the voters at the county courthouse.

Julian E. Bloodworth 1,067, according to the unofficial returns.

Other results were: J. B. Sheriff, 444; for ordinary, J. E. Butler 871, R. M. Lee 840; clerk of superior court, W. L. Council 751, handler Dendard 408, Ed. E. Byington 495; for tax collector, George T. Stapleton 1,231, H. F. Haywood 285, A. T. Fountain 192; for coroner, C. C. Thompson 708, Euler S. Mills 585, D. W. Bell was unopposed for tax collector and J. G. Hatfield was the only entry in the race for county surveyor.

Robert Dominguez, city clerk, said he would be able to determine by tomorrow whether the second petition was sufficient.

The petitions were circulated shortly after Dr. George Parrish, former city health officer, was removed from office several months ago. Charges of waste of public money, demoralization of police department, health department, power bureau and city prosecutor's office and failure to carry out campaign pledges were made.

The Parrish faction also revived the Paris incident of Mayor Porter's trip abroad last year, when the mayor declined to drink a toast. The charge was made that the mayor had brought ridicule and insult to Los Angeles by his conduct abroad and at home.

Porter, who went into office 2-1-2 years ago, replied by saying that Parrish was removed because he was inefficient and had turned the health department into a political organization. He claimed the forces of the underworld had united behind Parrish because the activities of the "vice lords" had been "hard hit" under the present city administration.

He offered figures to prove a healthy condition of city finances and the effectiveness of the police against crime and vice.

safe," he said. "I don't know when, but whenever it is I feel sure he will be in good health."

Later he said this confidence was not based on any information with which he was supplied.

State police gave no indication in what direction they were making the progress they reported, but in the hills to the northeast of the Lindbergh home a group of state troopers were searching abandoned huts and making an intensive hunt for clues.

It was made clear by Colonel Schwarzkopf that authorities had not concluded their investigation of Henry (Red) Johnson, seaman-suitor of the Lindbergh baby's nursemaid, who is being held in New York.

Still Under Investigation.

"Johnson is still under investigation," he said, adding it would take four or five more days to complete the checking of his story he knew nothing of the kidnapping.

The New York Evening Post said it had been informed by a person in touch with the Lindberghs that the father had known for several days where the baby was hidden; that he opened negotiations with the kidnapers Sunday night, and that the child is being kept on a boat.

Colonel Schwarzkopf said there is nothing to indicate the truth of the boat theory. He added in answer to another question that Johnson already had been questioned as to his association with sailors or officers of small craft which might have been used in the kidnapping.

It was disclosed in the evening press conference that apparently are two Betty Gows. The one who has figured in the case is the baby's nursemaid, who discovered he had been stolen from his sickbed. The other is a woman reported by State Attorney Hugh Alcorn, of Hartford, Conn., to have been deported two years and to have served six months in England.

The police said they "seemed to be" different persons, but added they had not concluded their investigation of this phase of the case.

NEGRO KILLS TWO IN PRISON BATTLE

Third Policeman and Trusty Wounded Before Prisoner Is Slain.

NEW ORLEANS, March 9.—(AP)—Running amuck with pistols and a pump gun in the twelfth precinct police station here today Percy Thompson, 25-year-old negro, held off a hundred officers for an hour, shot and killed two policemen, wounded a third officer and a negro trusty and being transported in a police automobile.

The dead are Patrolman Cornelius Ford and Corporal George Weidert. The wounded are Patrolman Albert Oeschler, a bullet in the chest, and the abdomen and William King, the negro trusty.

Thompson was shot in the chest as he was rushed in his unlocked cell by a group of officers led by Harry Gregson, chief of detectives, and was disarmed and captured.

He was taken to Charity hospital for treatment of his first wound. There he was held in a cell. He rebelled over a beating given him by officers over a rubber hose. He said he snatched Officer Ford's pistol and shot him.

On being taken to the hospital, Thompson was said by Officers Vick Swanson and James Smith, accompanying him, to have snatched at Swanson's pistol holster in an attempt to get his revolver. Swanson shot the negro near the heart and Thompson died a few minutes later.

More than a hundred policemen, led by heads of the police department, rushed to the little jail in the heart of the negro section at the alarm that pandemonium had broken out in the jail.

"We know nothing of this," came the reply.

At New Haven, Conn., police appeared convinced that Tony Meslo, contractor, held in jail since Monday night, knew nothing of the kidnapping. A woman had said she heard him and two companions discussing the baby 10 months ago.

West Virginia cabins were searched by police on the strength of a note which read:

Fly 32 miles south of Elkins, W. Va. Lindbergh baby in log cabin. Come alone. Out of food.

An aviator in Cumberland, Md., told police that a man in a mud-spattered automobile handled him an envelope containing the message printed on piece of road map.

A belief that the kidnapped Charles Augustus Lindbergh Jr. will be released in a matter of days, was expressed today by Governor A. Harry Moore.

"I have absolute confidence," he said, "that the baby will come back alive and safe. I don't know when, but whenever it is I feel sure he will be in good health."

ing that a Betty Gow was deported two years ago and that she served six months in Sing Sing.

A. Yes, but this does not seem to apply to the Betty Gow in the employ of Colonel Lindbergh. However, it is still being "delayed."

8. Do you know the reason for the month's delay in the application for and the granting of Betty Gow's visa?

A. Because of immigration quota.

9. Is it true the Mercer county detectives have withdrawn from the case? If so, when did they withdraw?

A. They have made a standing offer of co-operation. Colonel Lindbergh's home is in Mercer county.

10. Are the police seeking Frank A. Berg or Burg? Do they want to examine him? Do they know where his yacht, Ascor II, is?

A. Not on request of this office.

11. What are the latest developments? Are you still making progress?

A. Yes.

12. Colonel Schwarzkopf said at the state house conference this afternoon that in connection with the Lindbergh case there were no private affairs. This is implied by some newspaper men as meaning she is in poor health.

MRS. MCCORMICK WEDS EX-SOLON

Daughter of Mark Hanna, Albert G. Simms Married in Colorado.

COLORADO SPRINGS, Colo., March 9.—(AP)—Mrs. Ruth Hanna McCormick, former congresswoman from Illinois, and Albert G. Simms, of Albuquerque, former member of congress from New Mexico, were married today at the spacious home of the bride at Broadmoore, a suburb.

Following a romance which began in the halls of congress, the wedding ceremony was performed in the presence of a group of friends from several states.

Mrs. James Ailshie, daughter of the late Calvin Cobb, Boise (Idaho) newspaper publisher, was the matron of honor, and Justice John Simms, of the New Mexico supreme court, a brother of the bridegroom, was best man.

Rev. Paul G. Roberts, rector of Grace Episcopal church, officiated. The bride wore a gray afternoon dress trimmed with chinilla, which she wore at the debut of her daughter, Miss Kathryn McCormick. Miss McCormick, who is attending Columbia University, was unable to be here for the wedding.

Mrs. McCormick's son, the late Medill McCormick, and her daughter, Ruth Elizabeth McCormick, who are attending private schools in Colorado Springs, were among those present.

Reared in Politics.

The daughter of the late Mark Hanna, who directed the republican campaign that elected William McKinley president in 1896, Mrs. McCormick was reared in an atmosphere of politics. Her first husband, the late Senator Medill McCormick, died in September, 1924, as he was completing his first term as United States senator from Illinois. Mrs. McCormick became first chairman of the women's executive committee of the national republican committee, and first national republican committee-woman from Illinois. She was elected to congress in 1928.

Mrs. McCormick's seat in the house was used by her son, Congressman Simms, and the friendship begun amid the turmoil of national legislation developed into the romance which led to the wedding here today.

Mr. Simms is in business at Albuquerque and formerly was president of a bank there. His first wife was Katherine Atherton Mather, of Niagara, Falls, N. Y., descendant of Richard Mather, of Harvard College. They were married in 1914 and she died in 1921. He was admitted to the New Mexico bar in 1915 and served in the New Mexico legislature before being elected to congress on the republican ticket. He was defeated at the last election by Congressman Dennis Chavez, democrat.

The bride is 51 years old and Simms is 50.

Ohio Kidnap Trial Is Set for Monday

WARREN, Ohio, March 9.—(AP)—Trial of Dorell Hargrave, 31, and John DeMarco, 30, charged with kidnapping 11-year-old James De Jute, of New York, is set for next Monday.

The indictment charges kidnapping with intent to extort and both men will face possible life sentences if convicted.

ANNE LINDBERGH BELIEVES HER BABY WILL BE RETURNED

(Copyright, 1932, by The American Newspaper Alliance, Inc.)

WARREN, N. J., March 9.—Anne Lindbergh is holding her own—rather desperately now that a week which to her mother's heart is a century has passed and her arms still are empty.

She believes her son is alive. She believes he will be returned to her. She will not concede her belief is a reflex of hope.

Anne Lindbergh has the temperament of the dreamer, the mind of the materialist. When she dreams, she dreams of her love, the love of a mother, the kindness of mankind.

She has given expression to these dreams in rhythmic verse. She has reflected her soul in poetry. Suffering, heart-breaking, she has written Anne Lindbergh and left the spiritual being, the mother who cannot conceive of any human creature's could deny her the possibility of her son, much less that they could destroy the beauty that is her baby.

The white blanket of snow which blazed Southern mountains has been blown away by the wind, and the nest of the Lone Eagle perched on its crest once again stands out like a beacon to light the little Lind home.

All night lights glimmer against the back-drops of woods and frowning rocks. Anne Lindbergh does not sleep. She falls into a kind of trance of waiting, in which she awakens with a start to rush to the windows and strain eager eyes for the coming of a car that might bring back her baby.

Colonel Lindbergh rests by removing his coat and stretching himself on his bed in his dressing gown. At dawn he is back in the house, scanning the papers listening to the latest reports of the searches for his son, directing operations.

and by others as meaning that the subject of her health is simply a question which must be regarded as their private affair. "Will you please straighten us out on this?"

A. You must realize the strain is terrific and has been throughout the investigation.

13. How the Lindbergh baby been returned?

A. The baby has not been returned. Two doctors came to see me (Colonel Schwarzkopf, head of the New Jersey state police) yesterday. They saw no member of the Lindbergh family.

14. Will the police now say what general theory they hold? That is, are you believing in a "lucky amateur" or the work of an organized gang?

A. No answer.

15. Do you believe any change in the attitude on the part of the police, press or public would facilitate a solution of the crime?

A. We will not hesitate to ask the co-operation of the press in any way we think necessary.

16. Is there anything to indicate the child was taken aboard a boat? Has Johnson been questioned as to his association with sailors or officers of small craft which might have been used in the kidnapping?

A. No. Yes.

17. Can you tell us whether Louis Colombo, former counsel for the city of Detroit, Mich., is or was in conference at the investigation at the Lindbergh home or elsewhere?

A. We know this man and he is figured in any way in the case.

A. No. No. No.

EAST AND SOUTH SHIPS IN DISTRESS

Two Ships in Distress on Atlantic Seaboard Still Await Assistance.

By the Associated Press.

While two ships struggled helplessly in angry waters off the Atlantic seaboard, landmen felt the sting of a belated winter yesterday.

Temperatures were at their lowest of the winter in eastern and southeastern states, most of them whitened by snow. Trains and buses still yielded minutes to the deep drifts.

The 34 men aboard the collier De Bardeleben, rolling in the heavy seas 270 miles southeast of Nantucket lightship, held their posts from necessity rather than choice. For more than two days they have kept steeved away by keeping the engines pounding incessantly. The high seas have prevented lifeboats being lowered.

The passenger liner Adriatic still stood by as the coast guard cutter Ossipee drew nearer. The Adriatic, however, renewed a plea for relief so it could continue its trip to New York with mail and passengers.

The German freighter Harburg, at a point 180 miles off Cape Sable, N. S., also was endangered by a broken rudder. It sent an SOS, which was picked up by the liner President Harding along with the reassuring message that the steamer Vincent was nearby and steaming to the Harburg's assistance. The German vessel carries a crew of 35.

Show as deep as 3-1/2 inches lay in the South Carolina, which had enjoyed the warmest winter in 40 years.

WORLD COURT ISSUE RENEWED IN SENATE

BY CHARLES M. McCANN.

WASHINGTON, March 9.—(UP)—A 12-year intermittent fight over the question of American adherence to the world peace court was renewed today in the senate foreign relations committee.

No sooner had the committee taken up the bitterly disputed proposal than those senators in favor of adherence divided into camps.

In hoping to win over opponents to adherence, two "pro" senators offered a resolution designed to make it absolutely clear that the court—formally, the Permanent Court of International Justice at The Hague—must not attempt to give an opinion in any case in which the United States had, or expected to have, an interest.

EX-ERRAND BOY TO HEAD "STEEL"

As successor to the late Robert H. Gary, who was chairman of the board, chairman of the finance committee and chief executive officer.

Assured Last September.

Although it was assumed last September when Mr. Irvin was appointed vice president of the steel corporation, that he would be in charge of manufacturing operations, he was more or less of a dark horse among those mentioned for the position.

Mr. Irvin had been to a large extent overlooked in recent discussion of the most likely successor. Foremost among those mentioned in the gossip were S. L. Avery, Walter S. Gifford, L. L. Hughes, Eugene P. Thomas and Matthew S. Sloan.

It appears now that the selection was actually decided upon as long ago as last September and possibly earlier than that, when it was determined that Mr. Irvin was to be brought to this city to assume active direction of manufacturing operations.

As president he will be the operating head of the corporation. The financial affairs and public relations are conducted by Mr. Taylor, who is vice chairman of the finance committee.

Mr. Irvin is primarily an operating man—a practical steel maker with long experience. He is considered one of the most competent men in the organization, with a special executive talent and unusual skill as a salesman. He is popular with the men in the mills and in the offices. He is frank, soft-spoken, but aggressive, and an enormously vigorous worker. He will stop into the factory with a background only a little less extensive than that of Mr. Farrell himself.

The change will not involve any other important changes, although some incidental readjustments may be made in the steel business.

Like Andrew Carnegie, who founded the Carnegie company, which is the steel corporation's most important subsidiary, Mr. Irvin once was a telegraph operator with the Pennsylvania railroad. He may, as reported, have been a messenger at one time, but the conventional records do not disclose such an humble beginning. All told, he has been active in the steel business 30 years.

He was born in Indiana, Pa., on December 7, 1873, the son of David S. Irvin, a prosperous contractor, and of Sophia Bergman Irvin. His father was of Scotch and his mother of German descent. His common school education was obtained in the town of his birth. Later he took night courses at the Indiana State Normal school.

Became Telegrapher.

He became a telegrapher with the Pennsylvania railroad in 1888, and was successively clerk and assistant freight and ticket agent. He had his first taste of the steel business in 1892 when he entered the employ of the P. H. Laufmann Co., Ltd., at Apollo, Pa. This company, a manufacturer of sheet and tin plate, gave him a thorough grounding. At first a shipping clerk, he worked in various departments of the mill, finally advancing to superintendent.

The Laufmann Company was taken over by the American Sheet Steel Company in 1900, at which time Mr. Irvin was transferred to New York.

This company was merged with the American Tin Plate Company in 1904 and Mr. Irvin was sent to Pittsburgh as assistant to the operating vice president. He held that post 20 years. He was later made vice president in charge of plant operations.

Mr. Irvin is a member of the American Society for Testing Materials, the Society of Automotive Engineers, the Duquesne Club, the Engineers' Society of Western Pennsylvania, the Pittsburgh Athletic Association and the Pittsburgh Field Club.

Hope Reawakened in Thousands As Result of Arliss Picture

"The Man Who Played God," as portrayed by the brilliant George Arliss in the feature picture at Keith's Georgia theatre this week, has done much to reawaken hope in the breasts of thousands of Atlantans who have seen the presentation, it is indicated by the many favorable comments reaching The Constitution. Thousands of free tickets to the picture have been given away by The Constitution since Monday, and the purpose for which the tickets were given has amply been served, it was felt.

While no more free tickets are available to Atlantans desiring to see the great picture, the management Wednesday announced that every person who obtained free admission cards from The Constitution Monday, Tuesday and Wednesday, may use them through Friday. After that they will no longer be acceptable in lieu of the regular admission ticket as the theater's program will be changed Saturday.

The picture, claimed by many as George Arliss' greatest bit of acting, has proved to thousands that no difficulty or obstacle is too great to be overcome by faith, hope and courage. It was for that reason that The Constitution, in conjunction with the management of Keith's Georgia, made the arrangement whereby Atlanta men and women would be enabled to see the great picture, even though they did not possess the admission fee.

DE VALERA CHOSEN IRISH PRESIDENT

New Ministry's Aim To Be Further Separation
From England.

BY MICHAEL ROONEY.

DUBLIN, March 9.—(AP)—Eamon De Valera, lanky New York-born son of a Spanish father and an Irish mother, was elected president of the Irish Free State today by a vote in the Dail Eireann of 81 to 68.

His face wreathed in smiles at his triumph after years of fighting with his back against the wall, the new chief executive this evening took actual charge of the dail and presented the names of his ministers.

The ministry is wholly Irish—except the De Valera party which, translated, means soldiers of destiny—and labor, whose handful of votes will be needed to keep the De Valera government alive, was not represented.

Personnel of Ministry.

The new cabinet personnel was announced tonight as follows:

President of the executive council and minister for external affairs: Eamon De Valera.

Vice president and minister for local government: Sean T. O'Kelly.

Finance minister: Seán McKelvey.

Industry and commerce: S. E. Lemass.

Education: Thomas Derrig.

Lands and fisheries: P. J. Rutledge.

Justice: George H. Egan.

Postal: Senator Joseph Connolly.

Defense: Frank Aiken.

The ministerial announcement was greeted with cheers from the galleries and from the Irish parliament benches.

The old government party, headed by former President William T. Cosgrave, had gone over to the benches allotted to the opposition, with Mr. Cosgrave occupying the seat so long filled by Mr. De Valera.

The new dail adjourned its first session until tomorrow morning without any inkling about the policy Mr. De Valera expects to pursue beyond his earlier statements that it will be one of further separation from England.

The new president's anticipated stand regarding abolition of the oath to King George may come tomorrow or may be postponed until April 1, when the first Irish dail budget will be presented.

Voicing his opposition to the De Valera election, retiring President Cosgrave declared: "I propose to give every opportunity to Mr. De Valera to develop his policy. We do not want an explanation of policy; we want to see what he is going to do."

The De Valera victory never was in doubt. When the dail assembled after Catholic and Protestant religious services—Mr. De Valera and Mr. Cosgrave knelt near one another during solemn mass—the Irish dail fell silent.

Mr. De Valera called on Governor General James McNeill for an interview, the nature of which was not divulged, and for the purpose of receiving his formal appointment.

Thousands of persons crowded about outside the parliament buildings all day trying to see Mr. De Valera and the other Irish dail leaders, and whenever they appeared there were ringing cheers for them.

ANTRIM EXPULSION
ORDER IS QUESTIONED

RELEAST—Northern Ireland, March 9.—(AP)—In the Irish house of commons tomorrow, John W. Nixon will ask the minister for home affairs "whether the order prohibiting Eamon De Valera from entering any part of northern Ireland except County Antrim still is in force."

A quaint feature of the prohibition referred to is that Mr. De Valera could not enter Antrim, because of its geographical position, unless he did so from the air or from the sea, which he is scarcely likely to do.

FARMERS' PROTECTION SOUGHT BY TALMADGE

Senator Walter F. George was asked Wednesday by Eugene Talmadge, commissioner of agriculture, to amend the agricultural loan section of the Reconstruction Finance Corporation to protect borrowers "against usurious interest rates and wild-cat stock-selling schemes."

Calling attention to former government loans in Georgia, Talmadge, in a statement, said:

"Specifically, I have informed the senator that the Piedmont Agricultural Corporation of Georgia has loaned money in this state and, through a stock selling ruse, has forced the farmer who borrowed to pay virtually 37 per cent interest on his loan."

"If the farmers of this state are permitted to borrow from this $10,000,000 fund on the same basis, that is, 37 per cent, they obtained seed loans, it will undoubtedly be of some benefit, but, unless the law is amended and adequate checks are provided against stock selling and membership strings, it will be worse than no loan at all."

FARMERS' SEED LOANS AVAILABLE IN DEKALB

Funds for the farmers' seed loan, an act of congress revised January 22, providing loans not exceeding $400 to farmers to be used in purchasing seed, fertilizers and feed for work stock, now are available in DeKalb county, according to an announcement Wednesday by E. P. McGee, county agent.

These loans, bearing interest at 5 1/2 per cent, are due next November 20 and are advanced by the secretary of agriculture upon receipt of applications, given to the county agent who submits them to a special committee for investigation before sending them to Washington. These statements show the amount of loan desired, the number of acres for which seed and fertilizer is to be purchased, and the number of stock to be fed.

CHURCH RESOLUTION LAUDS McCULLOUGH

Resolutions of regret at the resignation of J. S. McCullough as church clerk were adopted by the membership of the Second Baptist church. Mr. McCullough had served successfully as an officer of the men's class, a deacon, chairman of one of the most important committees and chairman of the board of deacons.

ASSASSIN'S CLIQUE IS BARED IN JAPAN

Two Recent Killings Laid to Small Group of Fanatical Patriots.

BY GLENN HABB.
TOKYO, March 9.—(AP)—Police announced today they had discovered existence of a small group of fanatical patriots banded to assassinate notable Japanese leaders.

The recent assassinations of Baron Takuma Dan and former Finance Minister Junnosuke Inouye were said by the authorities to have been the work of this group. The police arrested Daiji Kurosawa, whom they described as a member of the "blood brotherhood," to which the two peasants who killed M. Inouye and the baron belonged.

Lieutenant Commander Fujii, a naval aviator who was killed February 5 when his plane was shot down at Shanghai, was said by the authorities to have been one of the organizers of the assassination movement.

Police said they had evidence the aviator bought eight Browning pistols in Dairen, Manchuria, and that two of them were given to the assassins of Baron Dan and M. Inouye.

The investigators indicated that obstacles were being placed in their way through the influence of strong reactionary political groups.

Two of these "higher-ups" were understood to have been temporarily detained and a search was being made for Nishio Inouye, a Buddhist priest belonging to the Nichiren sect, and Eiji Furuchi, a schoolmaster of the Ibaraki prefecture. The assassins of the former finance minister and the baron came from Ibaraki.

Lieutenant Commander Fujii, police officials said, apparently was indignant at what he regarded as the betrayal of Japan in the London naval treaty.

JAPANESE OFFER NEW TRUCE PLAN

that hostilities will break out afresh." The Japanese plan, details of which were not made public, was sent on to government officials at Nanking and Loyal by T. V. Soong and Quo Tai-chi, Nanking representatives, who received it from Sir Miles.

The Japanese consulate announced consular police were arresting two Japanese civilians who gave Miss Rose Marlowe, American missionary teacher, a severe beating Friday. Miss Marlowe, whose home is at Williamsburg, Ky., was set upon when she attempted to visit the ruins of the Baptist mission school on the border of Shanghai, where she had been a teacher.

Consular officials said the two civilians had been at the front and returned only today. They declared the two men would be tried for the offense, which was the subject of a protest by United States Consul Edwin S. Cunningham.

Four transports, filled with Japanese reinforcements, arrived at Woon yesterday. At least 2,000 men were landed immediately and trudged off through pouring rain toward Kiangwan.

A large number of soldiers remained aboard the ships and the Ninth Japanese division, which has been in the lines 20 days, was relieved by the Fourteenth division.

Units of the Ninth returned to Shanghai and were billeted in cotton mills, schools, residences and other buildings on the northern border of the city.

The men were coated with mud and bedraggled as they marched back through the rain. Japanese residents of Hongkew gave them an enthusiastic welcome.

Report of Increased Deposits in Banks Here Encourages Workers in Anti-Hoarding Drive

Members of the sales committee of the Citizens' Reconstruction Organization, which is working to put an end to hoarding, in a conference at the Chamber of Commerce Wednesday. Bottom row (left to right): Lewis Gordon, Samuel C. Dobbs and R. W. Courts Jr. Standing, Arthur S. Bird, W. D. Hoffman and S. C. Dobbs Jr. Staff photo by George Cornett.

Renewed confidence in the gradual return of better business conditions in Atlanta, the state and the south was expressed Wednesday when the Citizens' Reconstruction Organization heard reports from team captains, committee chairmen and workers.

The group meeting at the Chamber of Commerce building learned that the anti-hoarding campaign for sale of the baby bonds of the federal government is meeting with favorable reception from business leaders and industrial officials here.

Another especially favorable report was given on the increased deposits in the three Atlanta banks comprising the Atlanta Clearing House Association when it was stated that in the last six weeks deposits had increased $7,000,000.

Called upon to make their reports by R. W. Courts Jr., chairman of the sales committee, who presided, the team captains said that following their calls upon manufacturers the executives had assembled employees to whom the objects and workings of the campaign were explained. Response to the idea was reported as good.

Good Results Expected. Despite the fact that few sales were made, results are expected later as a result of the information given out to people who, in every case, the workers said, gave a sympathetic ear to the plea.

Arthur S. Bird, chairman of the Atlanta committee, made reports concerning the co-operation of various organizations with the drive group and Samuel C. Dobbs, prominent Atlanta business executive, said the baby bond idea was spreading rapidly.

The anti-hoarding organization took special interest in the report of a $7,000,000 increase in deposits in the clearing house association within six weeks, pointing that increases in deposits mean more money for circulation in general business channels.

The captains represent various lines of business and commerce. One of the office building managers promised the committee that he would bring the matter of the bonds to the attention of his tenants in the course of his dealings with them.

Many Calls Received. "We are receiving fifteen to twenty telephone calls a day about this bond campaign, showing that the public is interested," Mr. Courts said. "Everybody is doing fine work. We have a program of speeches through Friday night, and over the radio and through the newspapers we are taking our message to the people."

Mr. Bird read a letter from the Atlanta Clearing House banks in which they promised their co-operation, and agreed to take care of the bonds for purchasers.

Al Evans, organist at the Fox theater, is composing a song for us," Mr. Bird added, "and the management of Keith's Georgia theater has promised to have one of their vaudeville performers will 'wise-crack' at intervals about our work."

Mr. Gordon, chairman of the publicity committee, reported on advertising.

"I have prepared 10 pieces of copy which are now ready for the papers," he said. "We have a list of advertisers, and these will be asked to donate part of their space for some form of our advertising. These advertisements will be run through the fifteenth of this month. In addition the theaters will be asked to show slides."

Lauds Advertising Copy. Samuel C. Dobbs was then called on to make a talk.

"I have seen Mr. Gordon's advertising copy," Mr. Dobbs said, "and it is among the best I ever saw. I have had some experience in advertising, and we used to take months to prepare our copy. That Mr. Gordon got his together in such a short time is remarkable."

"These forms were submitted to a group of us, and although there were some suggestions here and there the copy was accepted in virtually its original form."

"I am very glad to note the attitude of the banks toward the issue of business and commerce. One of the bankers generally have grown to be afraid of their shadows, but they realize that they owe something to public service. Their response in this case has been very gratifying."

Mr. Dobbs said he believed that the black clouds of the depression were gradually breaking up, and he had many reports lately that indicated a brighter future.

Mr. Gordon said that the baby bond idea was becoming contagious—it had even invaded his home.

The other night I heard my son singing, 'Bye, Baby Bond.' He had seen me at work on my copy and heard me talking about the bonds."

It was suggested then that this be made a slogan of the campaign.

Plants on Part Time. The work was made difficult in some cases, the captains reported, by the fact that some of the plants visited were operating with reduced forces, or on part time.

However, the owners of most of the plants managed to call meetings of their employees, to whom the baby bond plan was explained. In one plant the men had their own loan organization and bank.

Practically every line of industry and business was represented at the meeting. The plan is to have the representative of one line call on all the companies in that line.

As a result of the wide publicity given to the movement there are many calls for information. The committee, however, does not wait for these, but carries its message directly to the people they want to reach.

"We never expected to sell these bonds at the start," said Mr. Courts. "We do expect, however, by our preliminary work to rouse the interest of the public in this form of investment. Sales will follow when the public is well acquainted with the idea."

Mr. Dobbs said the movement was worth while, if for nothing else than to bring the businessmen of the city together in a common cause and enable them to forget for the time the stress and worry of conditions.

Copies of various advertisements used in the other cities in the anti-hoarding drive were being taken to them with them and will display them in windows and other public places. Hoarding movement were placed on service. Their response in this case has been very gratifying."

FOURTEEN KILLED IN GAS EXPLOSION

Four Others Seriously Injured in Tank Blast at Camden, N. J.

CAMDEN, N. J., March 9.—(UP)—Fourteen men were killed and four others seriously injured today when a gas tank in which they were working exploded with a roar heard throughout the city.

Six of the men were regular employees of the Public Service Electric & Gas Company, owners of the tank. The others had been chosen from the city's rolls of unemployed—fathers of families happy to get a day's work.

One of the 10 men engaged in cleaning the big tank saw a blue flame creeping along the metal side of the "box," and ran away. He was about 100 yards from the tank when the blast came, knocking him to the ground. He was the only one to escape. The four injured men were on top of the tank.

"This was the worst thing I have ever seen in my experience," said Coroner Benjamin H. Denny. "It was a ghastly and horrible sight."

Very Unlucky. Preliminary investigation indicated that the vent at the top of the tank had not been opened sufficiently to ventilate the enclosure, and that an inrush of oxygen started spontaneous combustion. Police, fire department and private gas company investigators were in progress tonight.

Although the explosion took place at 7 a. m., it was not until five hours later that a checkup could be made of the casualties. The fire department had to quench the flames, coming from the tank like a monstrous blow-torch through a top hatch.

Recovery of the bodies was difficult because by the time the fire had burned itself out and remaining gases were driven from the tank, the enclosure was half full of water, mixed with the chemically treated sawdust which the men had been cleaning away.

The tank had been used for purifying gas before it went to the storage tanks.

Rudolph Walker, a negro worker, was the only eyewitness who could give a coherent story of the tragedy. He told how the men, descending a 20-foot ladder in the interior of the tank, had begun chopping away the chemical deposit on its sides.

"I looked around," he said, "and I saw a little blue flame in the sawdust. I yelled to the other men. This looks bad," and pointed to the fire. Then I ran up the ladder and down the outside. I kept on running after I hit the ground. I guess I intended to turn in the fire alarm."

"Anyway, there was an explosion that knocked me off my feet. I thought it had broken my ears. I got back and the flames were shooting out of the tank. I went and turned on the alarm, and then went back and helped."

Two Men Are Slain Trying To Rob Bank

MILL CREEK, Okla., March 9.—(AP)—Two men were shot and killed here today in an attempt to rob the First National bank.

They were shot down by citizens as they emerged from the bank. One of the men, who was believed wounded, escaped in a motor car.

The dead are: Adam Richety, of Lehi, and W. A. Smalley, of Sulphur, according to a statement made by Smalley before he died. He said the man who escaped was his brother, L. C. Smalley.

ENDS ASTHMA AGONY OF 6 YRS. IN 24 HOURS

New Prescription Works Wonders Supply Sent FREE

"For six years I suffered the terrible tortures of asthma, gasping, straining, choking, coughing and wheezing. Tried everything, but only temporary relief."

"Then a new prescription came into my hands. It stopped all choking and gasping almost instantly. Within 24 hours I could lie down and sleep in comfort all night long. It was really astonishing how soon I got well and I haven't had one attack since. My recovery was complete. I had no trouble getting a $10,000 life insurance policy. The doctor couldn't find a trace of asthma."

"If you suffer in a similar way this new prescription should quickly end your asthma tortures as it did mine. Try it. I will gladly send you a generous trial supply FREE. Write today to O. W. Dean, 413-C Dean Bldg., Bagin Harbor, Mich.—(adv.)"

Child's Hair Fell Out Until She Was Bald. Healed by Cuticura.

"When my daughter was three months old eczema broke out in little blisters on her forehead, one side of her face, her scalp and one ear. When the blisters broke they formed sore eruptions and she used to cry and scratch them. The eruptions scaled over and when they did her hair fell out until she was bald. She got very little rest during the night."

"A friend advised me to try Cuticura Soap and Ointment, which I did. I continued using them and before long she was healed." (Signed) Mrs. Rosa Gayle, R. F. D. 1, Box 31, Forkland, Ala., July 10, 1931.

Prothro isn't making any pennant predictions but he expects the Chickasaws to be "one of the six clubs in the active fight." His club, he says, is "about on par with last year."

ATHLETIC PILOT NOT TO CHANGE CLUB'S TACTICS

To Base Hopes on Old Combination of Hitting, Pitching.

By Alan Gould,
Associated Press Sports Editor.

FORT MYERS, Fla., March 9.—(AP)—The victory of the Cardinals in two out of three games of the spring "world" series, has convinced the experts Connie Mack contemplates no alteration whatever in his club's tactics or style of play this year.

After losing the world championship last October, many felt Mack would make some readjustments, designed to produce more versatility in the team's attack. Instead he made it quite clear to me today that he intends to base his hopes of a fourth straight pennant largely on the old combination of hitting punch and pitching. He says he sees no reason for changing the methods that have been so successful. The exhibition play of the A's so far bears out this viewpoint.

SLUG IT OUT.

Where the Cardinals, in the three games played so far, put a premium on base running with the idea of forcing the breaks and seizing opportunities, the Athletics braced themselves and slugged it out. The contrast in the styles of the two clubs has been quite as marked this spring as it was last fall, when Cardinal speed was a triumphant factor. The world champions have stolen five bases in the three games played in Florida, the Athletics none.

The Mackmen have outbatted their National league rivals in every game. Their three-game percentage of .365, including 42 hits, compares with the mark of .206 and only 22 safe blows for the Cardinals.

George (Mule) Haas, veteran centerfielder of the A's, has been the gun with the showy batting figure of .538. Oscar Roettger, the St. Paul recruit who has been playing exceptionally at first base while Jimmie Fox favors at third, has hit for the fancy average of .466. Ed Coleman, rookie outfielder from Portland, Ore., has a mark of .400. For the Cardinals, Jim Collins, sub first baseman, tops the list with .402. Pepper Martin has collected only three hits in as many games for an even .300.

PEPPER OVER-ANXIOUS.

Martin's over-anxiety to hit, inducing him to swing at bad balls has developed further conjecture as to just how he will survive the pressure. The Pepper is no less confident than his manager, Gabby Street, that he will have a good year but the trouble is that the young outfielder seems to feel he must keep trying to outdo himself. His one wild streak last October didn't make him a second Ty Cobb and never will. He is a colorful, courageous young ball player but for the time being faces the handicap of constantly drawing the spotlight.

Of the half-dozen or more young pitchers tried so far by the pennant club, Lew Krause, 19, the right-handed pitcher of the A's, and James (Tex) Carleton, of the Cardinals, have done the best work.

The spring debut of Dean Deay was just a shower of Philadelphia home runs and the most highly-touted of the rookie twirlers has yet to show how effective he can be. He may get another chance in the final game between these clubs, March 16, at Bradenton.

ARMOUR, DUDLEY WIN 4-BALL PLAY

MIAMI, Fla., March 9.—(AP)—Tommy Armour, British open champion, and Ed Dudley, Concordville, Pa., defeated Billy Burke, national open champion, and Johnny Golden, Noroton, Conn., 3 and 2 today to win first honors in Miami's annual golf classic, the $5,000 international four-ball match.

Armour raised his team's lead to two holes as he chipped within six feet of the pin and sank his third stroke for a birdie of the 433-yard 28th. Dudley and Burke halved the next with par three and every one took fours on the 30th.

Armour dropped out of the picture on the 31st because of a bad approach, and left Dudley to halve the hole with a par four.

Tommy and his partner took par fours on the 32d. Golden getting a half with par play while Burke took a fire. Armour and Dudley were two up with four to go.

The rain ceased during the last half of the afternoon round, but skies continued to threaten.

THE SPORT LIGHT

By Shadrach Rice

Slugging Vs. Science.

A favorite baseball story is the one about the training camp rookie who wired back to his folks, "You can expect me any day, now; they're beginning to curve 'em."

And I was reminded of this when reading of the spring World Series games in Miami that featured the home run just as if the baseball people hadn't been talking all winter about the revival of smart baseball and base running, and the unfashionable art of slugging. Either the pitchers aren't quite ready or anxious to bear down, which is probably the real reason, or all that chatter about the new majesty of the pitcher's estate was out of order.

You can see those rookies straining at the leash. Jimmy Collins, who took the first base assignment away from "Sunny Jim Bottomley" through the early part of the Cards' 1931 campaign, broke up the first Miami game with a homer, in the tenth inning, and in the second game Oscar Roettger, a gentleman who apparently never heard of Jimmy Fox, or didn't listen, poked out three homers. Making all due allowances for the calendar and the dubious pitching offered by Gabby Street's moundsmen, Roettger must be congratulated for making the most of his latest opportunities.

In the second game Collins got another circuit blow. Madjeski, a hopeful candidate for Mickey Cochrane's job, collected one, and Cramer, who hopes to crowd into the A's outfield, hit one. For the regulars George Watkins, Pepper Martin's neighbor in the Cards' garden, and Jimmy Fox, the A's regular first sacker, followed the style. Some of those gardeners' legs must be on the Leon Errol side, for homers made by Fox, Cramer and Madjeski all came from deep hits to the outfield.

Among the recruits who will not look back upon that 1932 season opener in Miami with great satisfaction is the gentleman known as Dean, of the Cardinals. Dizzy before, he was twice as dizzy after that long first inning, with four out of his first crashing for home runs off his delivery.

The result did not live up to the specifications as he had written them down. Dizzy Dean was going to show the majors something. He did. But not what he expected.

That so many exciting episodes would cluster around the name of Dean that Gabby Street would have to keep him on the roster this year, temperament or no temperament.

This Emmett Toppino, the Loyola speed demon, has been darning over the boards in such brilliant style that Frank Wykoff's reign as king of the sprinters is seriously challenged. Their first meeting will be awaited with keen interest.

But recalling how sensationally the Canadian youngster, Percy Williams, dashed out of obscurity, we should be etched against form prevailing in the Olympics. The interminable series of heats is one of the big reasons for the accredited stars failing, and there are always dark horses. Juan Pina, Argentina's best sprinter, has equalled the record of 10-4-10 seconds for the 100-meter dash held by Charlie Faddock and Eddie Tolan, indicating that some competition is coming from below the equator.

Batting and Spectacles.

There's a lot to be said for the prejudice and it will be interesting to observe whether the success of Chick Hayef in winning the batting championship of the National league last year breaks down the fear of "four-eyes."

A lot of good ball players, and plenty of umpires, so they will tell you, would have been far better if they had had the nerve to wear glasses during business hours. Ball players have feared that the wear of specs would give the hint that they were going back.

Vision can be surprisingly improved with correct glasses, even for those who think their eyesight is perfect. It is foolish for athletes depending to such a great extent on their eyes to forego such assistance, merely because of tradition.

Hayef was the first bespectacled player to win a batting championship. He is a pioneer, and should attract followers.

BIG SIX MEETS TO REORGANIZE

By Shadrach Rice

Reorganization of the Big Six into a Big Seven or Eight will take place at 2:30 o'clock this afternoon at a meeting of representatives of Tech High, Boys' High, G. M. A., Monroe, Madison, Riverside, Columbus and Lanier High, in W. O. Cheney's office at Tech High school.

An invitation was mailed several days ago to S. K. Tanner, of Lanier High, and Columbus also has signified its intention of joining the Atlanta prep organization, particularly for baseball and basketball.

Adoption of a baseball schedule and a discussion of various other spring sports will also feature the meeting.

W. O. Cheney, principal of Tech High, is the chief executive of the Big Six, but with the admission of any other team, it is likely that a president, vice president and secretary and treasurer of the new organization will be elected this afternoon.

and there were few .300 hitters. Roetz also was jockeyed around all season to be of best advantage to a weak club.

Given a first baseman who will bat comfortably over .300, and the Crackers are not worried about the other infielders butting over that mark. They consider .290 as a good average for the second baseman and the shortstop, so long as they can field their positions and turn out the double plays.

"How many .300 hitters did Birmingham have on her infield last year," they say in reply to questions about their infielders' batting average.

RIGHT-HANDERS.

Another fact that pleases the officials about the infield candidates is that all of them are right-handed hitters. This balances an outfield of left-handed sluggers in Carley, Rosenthal, Barnes and McKee. Cummings and Barron are right-handed, also it has been divulged.

Of the infielders, Lynch, Goff, Roetz, McGaughey, Rader and Herrin all swing from the right side and so does Johnny O'Connell, the catcher. Johnny Chapman, if he reports, will be another right-handed hitter. Bejin, the first baseman, hits left, but he is the only infielder who does, unless Si Rosenthal, a potential first sacker, can be counted as an infielder.

The winter and spring again yesterday and the squad was split, some of the players braving the cold at the park to jog about briefly.

The following men enjoyed a good workout at Daly's health club: Blethen, Starling, Farmer, Messenger, O'Connell, Hammond, Carrithers, Herrin, Goff, Lynch, Rader, Elrod, Bream, Martin, Carley, Beasley, Marquard, Howard and Goff.

Gainesville High Announces Games

GAINESVILLE, Ga., March 9.—A nine-game football schedule, seven of which are with members of the North Georgia Interscholastic conference, was announced here Monday by officials of Gainesville High school. Five of the nine games will be played at Gainesville.

Although the football schedule was practically completed when Gainesville was admitted to the N. G. I. C., they have enough games with conference members to compete for the football championship next fall.

THE SCHEDULE.

September 26—Macon, here.
September 30—Canton at Canton.
October 1—Marietta, here.
October 21—Newnan, here.
October 28—Griffin at Griffin.
November 4—Decatur at Decatur.
November 11—Athens at Athens.

N. A. P. To Close Successful Season

The last game of the season for the North Avenue Presbyterian varsity basketball team will take place at the Athletic Club Friday against the Washington Seminary team. The game is called for 7:30 o'clock.

Naps tied Athens High last Saturday night, and has won from Monroe, Sacred Heart, Elberton, Greenville High and the Nap Alumnae, having list only one game so far this season.

ST. PETERSBURG, Fla., March 9.—(UP)—Walter Berger's long home run, the first made at Water Front Park this year, was the feature of today's regular Braves-Yankees contest, which ended in a 2-to-2 tie at the end of the seventh. Manager McKee had expected to play an entire game, but cold weather caused him to end the affair in the seventh. If the weather continues, the Braves may be forced indoors tomorrow.

ST. PETERSBURG, Fla., March 9.—(AP)—Rain and cold forced the New York Yankees to call off their intra-camp ball game today, and except for a little game to keep pitching muscles loose, they were given a vacation.

The rest has particularly welcome to Jack Saltzger, Eddie Farrell and Ben Chapman. Saltzger has been suffering from a sore shoulder for several days; Farrell strained a back muscle yesterday, and Chapman is suffering from a chest cold.

business and has his mind and heart set on clinching a job. The same may be said of Claud Herrin, the Winder, Ga., youth who left a fine record in football, basketball and baseball at Oglethorpe and was named All-American third baseman his last year of the poll taken by Les Gage, of College Humor.

STAR ON BASES.

Jack Sheehan says that Hal Bejin, the first baseman, is one of the best men he ever saw on cutting off runners on a base.

Immediately after putting his signature on a Cracker contract yesterday, "Si" Rosenthal put in an order for a new bat. "Si" explained that he can use only a certain type of bat and made an elaborate description of it to "Chick" Roetz.

All of which indicates that "Si," who says he is completely restored to health, intends doing some real hitting for the Crackers this year.

There are two ministers' sons among the Cracker candidates in Ike Farmer and Cliff McGaughey.

Henry McCord Shaver, the amiable off-courier, is the only person about the park who speaks Spanish. Shaver spent several years in South America and can talk the Latin tongue as well as the English language.

News that Knoxville had obtained Pitchers Denny Garin, the little right-hander from Milwaukee and George Smith from Indianapolis, caused comment from some of the players who knew them in the American association.

T. C. MARSHALL NAMED DIRECTOR OF C. AND S.

Prominent Atlanta Druggist Put on Board of Bank's Central Office.

Thomas Callaway Marshall, for many years prominent in Atlanta retail drug business, has been elected a member of the board of directors of the central office of the Citizens & Southern National bank, according to announcement Wednesday.

Mr. Marshall has been connected with the retail drug business here since 1895, his first venture being at Broad and Marietta streets. From that establishment grew a group identified with Mr. Marshall's name—Marshall's pharmacy, at Tenth and Peachtree; Marshall & Pendergrast, 420 Moreland avenue, and two Marshall & Bell pharmacies. He also is president of the Druggist Co-operative Ice Cream Company and is a past president of Atlanta and state pharmaceutical associations. He is a Mason and Shriner.

Born in Eatonton, he came with his parents to live in Atlanta in 1883 when he was 4 years old.

Gibson Is Winner Of Feature Bout

Sailor Gibson won a technical knockout decision over Johnny Ritchie, substituting for Ted Goodrich, in the main bout of the boxing card at East Point Wednesday night. Ritchie was forced to retire in the third when he suffered a broken wrist bone.

Mickey McDaniel won the decision over Bennie Regan in a fast semi-final bout.

Charley Brown disposed of Frankie Wheeler in the third round, while Kid Holt, Atlanta, scored a first-round knockout over Blue Goose Norris. A good crowd attended.

FRIENDLY COUNSEL

BY CAROLINE CHATFIELD

Problems of general interest submitted by readers will be discussed in this column. Correspondence invited. Your name held in confidence. Write Miss Chatfield, care The Atlanta Constitution.

Good taste is a virtue that most of us minimize, yet one that enters into our relationships with family and friends and acquaintances. It manifests itself in what we do and say, what we wear, and in the way we live. It is the easiest one of the virtues to cultivate because it is the least conspicuous. Those that believe in it seldom offend against it and those that are ignorant of it are thorns in the sides of those that practice it. A friend of mine says good taste is the easiest one of the virtues to cultivate because its cultivation may depend largely on observation of those that display it. In other words, if you have no gift for making your living room attractive, if your pictures hang against the wall as if you have to strain your neck to look them in the face, if your tables are overcrowded with atrocious ornaments, if your chairs are placed so they make no concession to comfort, you may go into the living room of a friend who is more gifted in the art of homemaking than you are and appropriate her good taste, by copying it.

If you are tactless and prone to do and say the things that irritate others, you have but to watch the method of the tactful friend who always does and says the right thing at the right time. If you are ignorant of color combinations and dress in such a way that people turn around to look at you and laugh at you, you may observe the well-dressed woman and model your costume after hers.

The dictates of good taste cover all the experiences of our lives. There is no question to be decided by reference to good taste, whether it be in the family, in society, in politics, or in religion. Good taste never transgresses truth, or tact, or manners or morality. It never restricts kindly feeling or expression of such feeling. It is never in conflict with duty. It never checks ambition, but it does impose restraint on some methods of attaining ambition. It says—

"Be not the first by whom the new is tried. Nor yet the last to lay the old aside." Good taste has a suggestion for living—be obedient. It has a suggestion for lovers—live morally clean. It has a suggestion for married people—don't air your differences. It has a suggestion for the old—don't impose on youth. It has a suggestion for friends—don't take liberties with each other. It has a suggestion for all of us—don't brag about yourself, your children or your family. If the things you would say are true everybody will discover them and if they are not true everybody will laugh at our claims.

They are simply the high spots that are touched by good taste. It delves deeply into the innermost recesses of our lives and touches our thoughts on the quick, reminding us to kill them if they are not worthy to come out and encouraging us to express them if they have any merit. It forbids us to meddle in private affairs of others, and commands us to keep quiet if we have accidentally stumbled upon information to which we have no right. Good taste protects us against ourselves and protects others against us.

CAROLINE CHATFIELD.

Pi Omicron Sorority Gives Program Tonight

The fascinating influence of Africa in the literary world will be the theme of the Alpha program of Pi Omicron sorority, given this evening at 6:30 o'clock in the Henry Grady hotel. Mrs. Richard Battle, program leader, requests each member to respond to roll call with a current event pertaining to recent important developments on this continent.

The geography of Africa will be discussed first with a special description given of Abyssinia; to be followed ed by sketches of Cecil Rhodes and Olive Schreiner. "Road from Cape to Cairo" will be an interesting topic as well as "Beauty and the Jacobin." Two questions "What is the Real Theme of 'The Eyes of Monsieur Reaume'?" and "Why Are Songs of Solomon Introduced in this Course?" will provoke discussion among the various members.

Identification of the following names occupying the limelight will be made by Alpha members: Jan Smuts, Louis Paul Kruger, Mr. and Mrs. Martin Johnson, Abdel Krim, General Gordon and others. Volume 22 of the University Guild series will form the basis for this study. Mrs. Vernon Cooper, president of the Alpha chapter, will be in charge of the program, assisted by Miss Marianne McClelland, secretary.

with Castoria's gentle regulation

"The best way to cure colic," says a famous doctor, "is to prevent it." And the best way to prevent it is to avoid gas in stomach and bowels by keeping the entire intestinal tract open, free from waste.

But there's one thing to remember here—tiny baby's tender organs cannot stand harsh treatment. They must be gently urged. This is just the place Castoria comes to a mother's aid. Castoria, you know, is made specially for the delicate needs of babies and children. It is a pure vegetable preparation which is absolutely harmless. It contains no harsh drugs, no narcotics.

Children never fight Castoria. They like its taste and the relaxed comfort its gentle regulation brings. For many years it has helped mothers through trying ordeals with colicky babies, with children suffering from digestive upsets, colds and other little ailments. Keep it on hand for your children. You can always tell genuine Castoria by the name Chas. H. Fletcher.

JAMES DUNCAN HARDY WILL BE BURIED TODAY

Funeral services will be held at 11 o'clock this morning at Peachtree Christian church for James Duncan Hardy, pioneer resident of Jasper county and father of Deputy Sheriff J. Gordon Hardy. Rites will be conducted by the Rev. W. B. Burns and the Rev. Frank L. Adams and interment will be in West View cemetery.

Mr. Hardy, who for 25 years was a merchant at Ben Hill prior to his removing to Atlanta, for a time was custodian of Tech High school. Ill health forced his retirement from active business several years ago, but he was widely known in this section of the state. Death occurred Tuesday night at the home of his daughter, Mrs. G. H. Cornwell, 502 Copenhill avenue.

Mr. Hardy married Miss Madara Anne Hooks in Jasper county September 30, 1869, and she died June 25, 1914, in Fulton county. She is buried in West View cemetery, where Mr. Hardy will rest.

In addition to Deputy Hardy, Mr. Hardy is survived by four other sons, Lieutenant W. C. Hardy, police department; Guy E. Shaw II and Joe Hardy; Mrs. Cornwell and three other daughters, Mrs. W. F. Thompson, Mrs. H. A. Bennett, of Atlanta, and Mrs. W. A. White, of Stark, Ga. In addition a large number of grandchildren and several great-grandchildren survive.

LITTLE GRADY PATIENT DIES OF LONG ILLNESS

Death Wednesday took a little boy who long had lain ill, but who was affectionately known among the nurses as "the best patient" at Grady hospital. Four-year-old Clarence Hamilton, son of Mr. and Mrs. C. M. Hamilton, 320 Hill street, died after his return to the hospital for emergency treatment after being absent for about four months. Previously he had been a patient for nearly a year, with a throat ailment which necessitated the insertion of a silver breathing tube.

Funeral services will be held at the residence at 10 o'clock this morning. J. Austin Dillon Company will be in charge and interment will be at Fair Play, Ga.

Mr. Mitchell was recently appointed American trade commissioner to England.

Culbertson on Contract

A Worldwide Appeal

BY ELY CULBERTSON, World's Champion Player and Greatest Card Analyst

Conclusive evidence of the world-wide appeal of Contract appears in a glance at the mail which daily reaches my desk. On the day this is written, for instance, I received letters from Contract players not only from every state in the union, but also from Australia, five countries in Europe, South Africa and even one from war-torn Manchuria. Surely, a game that has this widespread appeal in these troublous times is worth while.

My correspondent in Denmark, Dr. Olaf Thomsen, a professor of medicine in Copenhagen, sent me the following hand with interesting comments on the play:

Neither side vulnerable. South—Dealer.

The Bidding:
South West North East
1♥ Dbl. 4♥ Pass
6♥ Dbl. Pass Pass

While the Slam contract was perhaps rather ambitious, in view of the first North and South between them held only slightly more than 5 honor tricks, the distributional values were so great that the bid was a fair gamble.

The manner in which it was played is interesting. West, who was a strong player, reasoned that against his 4-2 honor-tricks, the only possible justification for his opponent's Slam bid was in the element of distribution; that is, in ability to use the trumps both in the Declaring and Responding Hand for ruffing purposes. Hence, he decided that the best defense was to extract as many trumps as possible and thus reduce the opportunities for ruffs. He, therefore, opened the Ten of hearts. When South studied the Dummy, the success of his contract appeared doubtful, but he decided to play the hand by utilizing the full power of his trump suit through cross ruffs. In pursuance of this plan, he won the first trick with his own hand with the Knave, then led a small diamond and trumped in the Dummy. Next he laid down the Ace of spades and continued to cross ruff the hand until the following situation developed at the eighth trick:

♥ 5 4 3

♦ K Q 8 4 2
♣ 3

At that time the lead was in the South hand and the six of diamonds was led. The Declaring hand intended to ruff this trick with Dummy's "superfluous" Queen of trumps, but just before reaching for this card he saw that to do so would be to cut the line of communications between the hands. At this time he knew absolutely the cards remaining in the West hand, so instead of winning the trick, upon which West played the Ace, he discarded the seven of clubs. Now West's situation was hopeless. In the game, he led the King of clubs which was won with Dummy's Ace.

Mrs. Townley Will Be Honored At Luncheon

Listed among the attractive March visitors is Mrs. S. Bertram Townley, of Newark, N. J., the guest of her sister, Mrs. Herbert Halverstadt, at her Springdale road residence in Druid Hills. She is providing inspiration for a series of informal social affairs, and will be honored guest at a luncheon to be given Friday by Mrs. Halverstadt.

Invited to meet Mrs. Townley are Mrs. Richard Orme Flinn, Mrs. J. D. McCarty, Mrs. Frank M. Inman, Mrs. C. E. Stone, Mrs. Henry R. Todd, Mrs. E. M. Helbig, Mrs. R. Shoemaker and Mrs. Campbell Woodbridge.

Mr. and Mrs. Henry R. Todd entertained informally Tuesday evening, March 1, at their home at 1000 Ponce de Leon avenue in compliment to Mrs. Townley.

Lillian Mae Patterns

Chatterer the Red Squirrel poked his head out of his doorway to look and listen before venturing out.

There was the sound of distant pouncing, a fainter clattering and a merry whistle. He knew that whistle. He had heard it often enough. It was the whistle of Farmer Brown's Boy. He knew, too, what the pouncing and clattering meant, for he knew just where those sounds were coming from. They were coming from Farmer Brown's sugar camp in among the sugar maples and they meant just one thing—that Farmer Brown and Farmer Brown's Boy were preparing to make sugar and syrup from the running sap of the maple trees. They did it every year when the say was running.

He hadn't stopped for even a mouthful of breakfast. He passed right through the top of the tree where he had the day before stolen sap from Tapper the Sapsucker. He didn't give Tapper so much as one single little thought. He had forgotten all about Tapper. It was just as well, for Tapper was even then drinking sap from the little holes he had tapped in the tree trunk and was preparing to make it most uncomfortable for Chatterer should he again try to steal any of that sap.

Chatterer was excited. He was very much excited. He always is excited when humans come into the Green Forest. Now he was even more excited than usual, for he knew that there would be many to watch and very likely opportunities to steal many a tidbit from the little sugar house among the big maples. Any way he would be able to get all the sap he wanted without danger from the stout, sharp bill of Tapper the Sapsucker.

He was soon in sight of the little house and hid where he could see all that went on without himself being seen. Farmer Brown and Farmer Brown's Boy were going from tree to tree, boring little holes in each, driving into these little spouts and hanging pails to catch the sap that would run from those little spouts. Chatterer's eyes shone with greed. There would be no trouble now in getting all the sap he wanted without the trouble of working for it, and without the danger of having his coat torn by a sharp bill, to say nothing of the pain that would follow.

So Chatterer watched and hid his time and thought greedily of the good things he would have, and it didn't occur to him that in taking them he would be doing anything wrong—that he would be stealing. You see, in the Green Forest each one has a right to take what he can get. It is his only when he has possession of

KITCHEN PRETTINESS.

200-A. Gone are the days when women weren't supposed to be looked at in the kitchen . . . when the woman outside the household was an entirely new creature from the one busy herself in the kitchen. Home atmosphere has a charm all its own. And in order to bring that charm fully to the surface, the head of the household must be a decoration instead of a detriment to it. Let's look at No. 200-A. Just a simple little house-dress. But isn't it pretty? Notice the neat lines and the soft, dainty effects. Sleeves, short for work, and puffed for prettiness. The smart revers that ties on a side. The handy, flared pocket. Just the thing to wear around the house. Designed in sizes 14-16, 30-32, 34-36, 38-40, 42-44, 46-48. Size 36-38 requires 4 yards of 36-inch fabric or 3-3/4 yards of 30-inch fabric.

HOW DOES SHE EVER FIND TIME TO BAKE ON WASHDAY?

MONDAY IS NO DIFFERENT FROM ANY OTHER DAY. SHE JUST SOAKS THE CLOTHES IN RINSO SUDS AND THEY COME OUT CLEAN AND WHITE WITHOUT SCRUBBING

NO WONDER YOUR LINENS LAST SO LONG. I MUST GET SOME OF THAT SOAP FOR EMMA

Try these safe, active suds for dishes, too

MILLIONS of women know there's no soap like Rinsol for bright, snowy washes. Its thick suds soak out dirt—save clothes from being boiled and scrubbed threadbare. The very finest cottons and linens—white or colors—are safe in Rinsol's soapy suds.

And millions of women everywhere are discovering how marvelous Rinsol is for dishes, too. They use it three times a day—for china, glassware, pots, pans. How grease goes! How dishes shine!

Such an economical soap, too. A little Rinsol gives a lot of rich, creamy, long-lasting suds.

Get the BIG household package

Speed up dishwashing! Make all housecleaning easier! Use Rinsol. And be sure that your laundress uses it, too—for the whitest, brightest washes you ever saw!

A PRODUCT OF LEVER BROTHERS CO., CAMBRIDGE, MASS.

Millions use it in tub, washer and dishpan

for whiter washes

THE GUMPS—HEIR TO THE GUMP FORTUNE

WEST WE FORGET—
THE NEWS HAS REACHED THE GUMP FAMILY AT LAST. THEIR DEAR UNCLE BIM HAS BEEN SAVED AND IS SAFE AND SOUND—THE WHOLE FAMILY HAVE SCARCELY SLEPT A WINK DAY OR NIGHT SINCE THE NEWS OF THE SHIPWRECK—

3-10

IT MEANT A GOOD DEAL TO THEM— IF BIM WAS LOST AT SEA, IT WOULD MEAN THAT ANDY WOULD HAVE TO TAKE A TRIP TO AUSTRALIA— BEING THE CLOSEST HEIR AND CHESTER'S GUARDIAN—WELL— IT WAS A CLOSE CALL AND WE CAN THANK OUR LUCKY STARS THAT OUR DEAR UNCLE IS STILL ALIVE—
CAN YOU REALIZE IF HE HAD DROWNED WHAT THAT WOULD HAVE MEANT TO US? HE ALWAYS SAID HE WOULD WILL EVERYTHING TO CHESTER—
DON'T LET ME FALL—
BOY—OH BOY— YOU DON'T KNOW HOW CLOSE YOU CAME TO BEING THE RICHEST KID IN THE WORLD—
OH, WELL— IT'S ALL FOR THE BEST— CHESTER WAS TOO YOUNG ANYWAY TO HAVE SO MUCH MONEY LEFT HIM— IT WOULD HAVE PROBABLY SPOILED HIM—TURNED HIS HEAD— AND ANYTHING I HATE IS A SPOILED CHILD—

MOON MULLINS—MAYBE IT'S THE MOON

YES, MY DEAR MRS. MAGERINE, MAXINE ACTS SO-ABSTRACT AROUND ME. THAT I SOMETIMES WONDER IF SHE REALLY LOVES ME.
YOU SILLY BOY OF COURSE, SHE LOVES YOU! WHY THE MINUTE WE FOUND OUT THAT YOU WERE THE GREAT AND SOCIALLY PROMINENT LORD PLUSHBOTTOM, WE ALL LOVED YOU.
HOW FOOLISH OF ME—OF COURSE, MAXINE WOULD NEVER HAVE CONSENTED TO BECOMING THE FUTURE LADY PLUSHBOTTOM IF SHE WASN'T IN LOVE WITH ME.
M-MAXINE! MOON!! MY WORD!!!

GASOLINE ALLEY—AN EYE FOR AN EYE

IT'S THE ALTITUDE, WALT. I'M AFRAID THIS MILE THROUGH BISBEE IS A LITTLE TOO MUCH FOR MY CAR.
I'LL GIVE YOU A BOOST, AVERY.
UP TO NOW I'VE BEEN GETTING TEN MILES ON A GALLON.
NO, AVERY, I DON'T WANT A THING FOR PUSHING YOU UPHILL.
THANKS, WALT, BUT I PAY AS I GO. HERE, MISTER, GIVE THIS MAN A TENTH OF A GALLON OF GAS.

SMITTY—THEY GOT HIS NUMBER

Aunt Het
They may get along, but she's taught school so long that she talks in a patient-mother tone of voice that's going to be hard on Bill's manly pride. (Copyright, 1932, for The Constitution.)

TEN MORE MINUTES AND OUR JOURNEY IS OVER SMITTY! FOURTEEN DAYS IN A TAXI OVER DESERT, MOUNTAINS AND HILLS IS A LONG RIDE
HEY, DRIVER! HOW MANY MORE BLOCKS ARE YOU GOING?
SAY BOSS, I DON'T THINK I CAN FIND YOUR ADDRESS
WHAT! AND YOU CALL YOURSELF A TAXI DRIVER?

LITTLE ORPHAN ANNIE: Plans

SALLY'S SALLIES
CHEMICAL WARFARE, EH?
Blondes are the most outstanding contribution chemistry has given the world.

WELL, THE YACHT TRIP IS OFF FOR NOW AT LEAST— I CAN'T SEE WHY OLIVER IS SO FUSSED ABOUT SOME BUSINESS MATTER TEN THOUSAND MILES FROM HERE— BUT THERE'S NO USE ARGUING WITH HIM— HM-M-M— THERE'S PLENTY RIGHT HERE TO KEEP ME BUSY—
THIS PLACE IS A MESS— BIG ENOUGH— SWELL— VIEW FROM WAY UP HERE FIFTY STORIES ABOVE THE CITY— BUT SUCH TERRIBLE FURNITURE— NO SNAP TO IT— GIVE ME COLOR AND PEP— I'LL HAVE TO HAVE THE WHOLE PLACE DONE OVER—
AND THAT BIG LUMMOX! CAN'T YOU JUST SEE HIM BARGING AROUND A SWELL APARTMENT, TRACKING UP THE RUGS, TIPPING OVER THE CHAIRS, SHEDDING HIS LONG HAIR ON ALL THE CUSHIONS— UGH! WHAT A DOG!
I'LL HAVE TO GET RID OF HIM— THAT'S MY FIRST JOB— I'VE GOT TO GO EASY, THOUGH— THE KID IS CRAZY ABOUT HIM— I'LL HAVE TO FIND OUT JUST WHERE I STAND— IMAGINE! ME HAVING TO USE DIPLOMACY IN MY OWN HOME IN DEALING WITH A MONGREL LIKE THAT—

WINNIE WINKLE, THE BREADWINNER: Mistaken Identity

JUST NUTS
I'D NEVER LEARN TO PLAY THAT— I COULDN'T GET IT UNDER MY CHIN—
BASS VIOL

WAIT TILL THE BOSS HEARS I'M GOING TO GET VING COLUMBALLEE FOR HIS LODGE SHOW! BOY, THAT WAS AN INSPIRATION!! BESIDES I'VE ALWAYS BEEN CRAZY ABOUT HIM AND HERE'S MY BIG CHANCE TO MEET HIM!!
I'VE GOT A BIG SURPRISE FOR YOU, MR. BIBBS!! I'M GOING TO GET VING COLUMBALLEE FOR YOUR SHOW!
OH YES? WELL, PARDON MY IGNORANCE, BUT WHAT IS THIS VING COLUMBALLEE?
YOU MEAN TO SAY YOU NEVER HEARD OF THE BIGGEST SENSATION ON THE RADIO?? VING COLUMBALLEE THE FAMOUS CROONER??
THE FAMOUS CROONER!!
OH— I THOUGHT YOU SAID "GROANER!!"
